MAN ON THE BUS SPEAKS HIS MIND ABOUT ELECTION

Willkie Inspires Him at Plymouth, Mass.

This is the first of a series of articles by Philip Kinsley describing a cross country bus trip and telling what the average man who rides the buses of America thinks and says about the approaching election.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Plymouth, Mass., Sept. 8.—The sunlight is dancing on the waves and beyond the dim outline of reefs and islands one can almost see the little Mayflower bending to the breeze and approaching this new world on one of the most heroic adventures of the human race.

That little band of Pilgrim Fathers that landed here on Dec. 21, 1620, started something that is not yet finished. It was the morning of democracy, the seed of the American republic, transplanted out of 400 years of struggle for freedom in England, out of the thoughts of schoolmen in the cloisters of the middle ages, out of the ancient democracies that perished because of basic weakness, out of natural philosophy, out of eternal spiritual values.

Landing Rock Is Still There.

This band of bus trippers today comes out of nearby cities and towns to find the old rock where the landing was actually made. Tides and sands have almost covered it. Two years ago somebody painted it red during the night. But it faces the wide ocean still, sheltered under a marble canopy, close to the hill where the bones of the fathers have been gathered in a marble monument, on which it is written:

"Reader, history records no nobler venture for faith and freedom than that of this Pilgrim band. In weariness and painfulness, in watching often in hunger and cold, they laid the foundations of state wherein every man thru countless ages should have liberty to worship God in his own way. May their example inspire thee to do thy part in perpetuating and spreading the lofty ideals of our republic thruout the world."

Faith Stands Above All.

There is a bench on the hill where one may meditate. It is dedicated to the "Pilgrim fathers and mothers whose heroic idealism established the basic principles of the government of our land."

Over it all stands the Forefathers' monument, 81 feet high, where the figure of Faith stands above the restless sea and the human tide, a star in her forehead, a Bible in her hand, pointing to the heavens. The foundation figures of Education, Justice, and Law rise above the marble bas-relief pictures of the signing of the Mayflower compact, the beginning of democratic government in this land, the landing, and the treaty which brought peace with the Indians.

From this point the tides of democracy rolled westward. The survival value has not been anything that could have been foreseen 300 years ago. The radicalism of it has been forgotten. Kings and predestination went out of the window together. The chain of thought, the rights of the individual soul, evolved far beyond the Puritan church-state, the rule of the saints who held the keys of heaven, into independence as a nation, federal union, the written fundamental laws of the land. In character, the denial, the sacrifice, the frugal, hard working simple lives of the fathers, were written again and again in every state in the march across the continent.

Doughty Captain on Guard.

Now, what of today? This town is a lovely, shaded resort, with a standardized main street but with old lanes and houses that give it a pre-revolution atmosphere. Up the hillside where Capt. Miles Standish built his fort the sites of the first cabins are marked on white, commodious homes. There are the quiet graves. The heroic figure of the doughty captain stands on a monument across the harbor, commanding the wide bay, still defying enemies within the woods or beyond the waters.

Here is a young clerk from Rhode Island on vacation. What does he

DRIVE PRESSED TO RID UNIONS OF GANG BOSSES

Taylor Aids to Study His Story Tonight.

The attention of organized labor and county and city authorities will be focused on a meeting tonight of the executive board of the Chicago Elevator Operators and Starters' union. It will assemble to take action on the startling deathbed confession of Mathew Taylor, union president.

The board's action is expected to have far reaching effects on Chicago's drive to free labor from the grip of gangsters.

Authorities held the need for the purge was shown by Taylor's statement, made before he died Friday in a Naperville sanitarium, that he had taken at least $30,000 from the union's treasury in the last year and paid it to "the mob" to insure his life against the mob's thugs. The 3,500 Chicago members of the elevator union pay $48 a year into the treasury thus looted.

Gang Payments Told.

Taylor's affidavit, made to State's Attorney Courtney, swore he paid the money to the gang thru Thomas J. Burke, a vice president of the Building Service Employés' International union. He said he also paid union funds to George Scalise, New York hoodlum and pander, who has been ousted from the presidency of the building service union. Scalise is now on trial in New York on charges of stealing the international union's funds.

Bertram J. Cahn, president of the Chicago Crime commission, said last night that attention is focused on the following things, which the union board may or may not do:

1. Demand that William McFetridge of Chicago, Scalise's successor as international president, suspend Burke until Burke has been acquitted or convicted of charges growing out of Taylor's statement.

2. Institute action against the building service international or against Burke as an individual to recover the $30,000 which Taylor said had been taken from the local's treasury. Observers saw an ironic situation in the local remaining affiliated with an international whose first vice president has been accused of robbing the local.

Union leaders questioned whether Chicago Building Managers' association would continue to deal with Burke in view of the charges against him.

The board also will be faced with the problem of how much the union's funds have shrunk as a result of the looting. It is said to be interested in learning whether Scalise forced Taylor to give him $10,000 to pay off the Chicago Elevator Constructors' union in 1937 when it became affiliated with Scalise's international.

Among other highlights yesterday in the drive against racketeers was the revelation that Paul B. David, secretary treasurer of the international union, apparently still holds office and draws pay while in hiding near Lake Chetek, Wis., about 40 miles north of Eau Claire. He is a fugitive from a subpena issued by the Cook county grand jury in an investigation of Scalise's books.

Still on Pay Roll.

John Enright, attorney for Burke, said David still is on the union pay roll. The search for Kenneth Ashley, David's bookkeeper, also continued. He was in a hideout in Wisconsin, but disappeared several days ago. It is said he likewise is still on the union's pay roll, and State's Attorney Courtney will investigate to determine whether the union thus is paying the expenses of two fugitives.

City authorities were said to be debating their policy concerning future dealings with the elevator operators' union. Some of the unions affiliated with the building service international, of which the accused Burke is first vice president, are school janitresses, public school bathroom attendants, public school custodians, school inspectors, school and municipal janitors, school matrons, playground attendants, and Cook county employés.

Funeral services for Taylor will be conducted at 2 p. m. today in the chapel at 1820 Michigan avenue.

Girl Pilots Try Their Wings at Annual Meet

Chicagoland's eighth annual all-feminine air show was staged yesterday by members of the Chicago Girls' Flying club before 12,000 spectators at Sky Harbor airport, two miles west of Northbrook on Dundee road.

Nine girl pilots of the club—which numbers among its sixty members housewives, stenographers, manicurists, receptionists, and teachers—took active parts in the events which made up the four hour program. All flew light airplanes of from 50 to 70 horsepower. The other club members acted as ticket takers, officials, or judges.

Club One of Few of Kind.

The flying club is one of the few of its kind in the United States. Few of its members are engaged in aviation commercially.

The show opened with a spot landing contest in which Miss Jerry Truesdell, 7945 Drexel boulevard, secretary to an industrial engineer and treasurer of the club, captured first place. Second place went to Miss Janet Mayhercy of Wilmette, president of the club and assistant to the head of a Chicago oil company. Third place went to Mrs. Helen Budwash of Harvey, a theater cashier.

In a cross country race of 60 air miles to Naperville and return, an annual feature, Miss Frances Anderson of Bellwood, who won the event last year, again finished in first place. However, because of a club ruling prohibiting the same pilot from winning the first place trophy twice in succession, Miss Anderson was awarded the second place prize. The trophy went to Miss Harriette Rhoads of Northbrook. Third place went to Mrs. Budwash.

Another Race Held.

An hour later, in a similar race to Lake Zurich and return, Mrs. Budwash finished first and Miss Anderson captured second position.

In the last event of the day, a closed pylon race of 25 miles in the vicinity of the airport, Mrs. Budwash again brought her Porterfield plane in in first position. Second place went to Miss Mayhercy, and third to Miss Kathryn Stark, 8143 South Sangamon street.

Also featured in the show was an exhibition of aerobatics by Miss Opal Anderson, 801 South Albany avenue, a flying instructor and stunt pilot.

BRITISH AND GERMANS TALK; PEACE? NO, BUT ABOUT WINDSOR MAID

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Sept. 8.—Direct communication between German military authorities and British diplomats was established Saturday for the first time since the war began. The reason, it was learned tonight, was that the French maid for the duchess of Windsor wanted to leave France to join her mistress in Nassau, the Bahamas.

A high official of the British embassy here was informed that some one was phoning from Hendaye, a French town on the Spanish border. He went to the phone and found himself talking with German military headquarters. He was informed the Germans were holding the Windsors' maid, but were willing to permit her to enter Spain.

The embarrassed official consulted his superiors and returned to the phone to announce that his majesty's embassy would be grateful if the German army permitted the maid to proceed.

The diplomat and the German officer rang off after a courteous exchange of thanks, and the maid was understood to be en route today to Lisbon, where she will embark for the Bahamas.

A SHERIFF WHOSE KNEES BUMP JOB ON HIS HANDS

The city slicker who tried recently to outsmart a number of Kendall county farmers apparently has given up in disgust. At least he hasn't been heard from since he failed a week ago in an attempt to rob the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Pottie, who live about a mile east of Plano.

Sheriff Robert Woodard said the slicker would sneak into a farmer's barnyard at night, drive his cattle into the road, and then pound at the farm door and inform the householders that their herd was roaming the road. On at least four occasions he failed to clear the coast because at least one member of the family remained at home.

At the Pottie home, however, the Potties and a guest ran after the cows. The stranger stayed behind, but fled when Mrs. Pottie returned and caught him at a bureau drawer. Sheriff Woodard's only description of the would-be burglar is that he's pigeon-toed.

"That's a devil of a description," the sheriff said last night. "I bump my knees together when I walk, too."

Royalty Prays with Roosevelt for 'Just' Peace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 8.—In this quiet little village, President Roosevelt sat within his home church today and heard his minister pray that this nation be spared from "the greatest catastrophe of all time" and that a peace of righteousness and justice may be restored to the world.

Thus the chief executive led the nation in observance of the day he had proclaimed for special prayers for peace in a troubled and war-ridden world.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her lady-in-waiting, the Countess Ostgaard, sat in the Roosevelt family pew of St. James Episcopal church, the same small ivy-covered stone edifice in which King George and Queen Elizabeth of England heard prayers for them a little more than a year ago.

Brute Nations Assailed.

The crown princess, who with her children has taken refuge in the United States since the Nazis have overrun her country, heard the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, rector of the church, assail "brutes in the brotherhood of nations who have gone mad and are ravishing their weaker brothers."

The rector used as his text Daniel ix, the third verse; "And I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek by prayer and supplication, with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes."

"Many of us feel we're on the brink of the greatest catastrophe of all time," the Rev. Mr. Wilson asserted. "No man dare pray for himself what he would not pray for others. We as a nation must realize that we have been contributors to the world condition of affairs. We are partly responsible."

Asks Other Prayers.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson requested the congregation to pray not only for peace, but for those in every nation who stand for freedom and truth; for deliverance of all people from selfishness, hatred, and revenge; for unity that will spread brotherhood among the nations; for the wounded and sick; for those who minister to human suffering and need, and for our individual and national sins.

After the service Mr. Roosevelt posed with the minister for pictures.

SEE GERMANS ATTEMPTING TO DEAL KNOCKOUT BLOW

Raid Great Arsenal Area; Goering Leads Drive.

BERLIN, Sept. 9, Monday (AP).—Germany loosed on London today her biggest bombing planes laden with new "super bombs."

Both the craft and the explosives are of the deadly types reserved exclusively for Nazi knockout blows on special objectives.

In these new smashes in a concentrated effort to give the English defenses a paralyzing shock, Germany obviously sought a quick showdown in the war.

Everything indicated that the drive now would be continued with relentless fury to the full extent of the reich's powers.

Goering in Personal Charge.

Speculation on whether "Der Tag" had come centered on the fact that Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering had assumed personal direction of the attack, which seemed unlimited in time and in the number of planes participating.

It was believed that Goering would not personally associate himself with anything but a major war action.

Returning German airmen agreed that the British antiaircraft fire continued vigorously, but conveyed the impression that British fighter plane defenses were losing force.

Air Made Rough.

One member of a propaganda company, returning from a flight over London, said antiaircraft fire made the air extremely rough. The concussion of thousands of shell explosions threw his plane crew from their seats, he said. Many returning German machines were scarred by 20 or 30 shell fragments.

Some German fighter pilots, however, said they escorted bombers to and from England without having anything to do in the way of defense against British planes.

Fragmentary reports from Nazi bases in France and the Low Countries stressed the new attacks on London harbor and industrial regions, claiming factories, arsenals, and fuel stores were destroyed.

There were occasional brief reports of attacks on Liverpool, Manchester, Southampton, and other cities, but the assault on London overshadowed all else.

Great Power of Bombs.

In mentioning the super bombs for the first time, authorized German sources gave no description, but it was reported one such great missile was capable of leveling anything in a radius of 500 yards, and that the concussion tosses airplanes about like small boats in a wild sea, even at heights of several thousand feet.

A midnight wave of the heaviest type bombers with their cargoes designed for sudden and widespread death and destruction numbered about 35 planes.

The "superfleet" followed masses of other planes hurled against England on a scale equaling the great assaults against London Saturday night.

Bomb Large Factories.

The British capital's famed arsenal borough of Woolwich and the southwest reaches of the city have been subjected to a concentrated destructive scourge.

The Germans reported they bombed several large factories in southwest London and a warehouse and railway station, starting at least two large fires.

British fighters engaged the bombing squadrons and their escorts in scattered encounters, the Germans announced, 12 British and four German planes being destroyed.

Reichsmarshal Goering speaking unexpectedly Sunday by radio, presumably from his headquarters with the air force, told the nation that a "terrific attack" was in progress against London and that the Fuehrer had entrusted him with attacking "the heart of the British empire."

British planes were said to have tried again Saturday night to answer the German air attack on London with a bombardment of Berlin but to have been turned away.

Besides air devastation, the communique reported 44,400 tons of British shipping sunk by naval operations.

City Shakes Under Second Night of Battering.

BULLETIN.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 9, 4:30 A. M. Monday. — Hundreds of bombs were being dropped on London early this morning. Many fires were started. I heard the whine of one falling bomb, and saw its explosion lift a five story building into the air, where it seemed to be suspended for a moment and then it dissolved.

LONDON, Sept. 9, Monday (AP).—Waves of German bombers striking hard at the vital heart of Britain's empire gouged at London today in the longest and most ferocious bombardment of the war—9 hours and 41 minutes of fire streaked, bomb blasting horror.

Flames from a new cluster of heavy explosive bombs shot heavenward in the vicinity of the house of parliament a few moments before the all clear signal shrilled at 5:39 a. m.

The Associated Press building, in the center of the area ringed by dropping bombs, was repeatedly shaken by the heaviest shocks yet felt in the capital. A shower of brick fell on the building after a heavy bomb exploded 150 yards away.

Raiders Fly Lower.

Rooftop observers there saw the big cluster of heavy bombs drop in the direction of the houses of parliament, but there was no immediate indication of whether they were struck.

A photographic plate in the pocket of Laurence Harris, photographer on the roof of the Associated Press building, was smashed by the concussion of a nearby blast. The wave bombing came as a new broadside against London after Nazi planes had presented a variety of aerial tactics. Some raiders flew in much lower than bombers on any previous attacks.

Blasts Become Heavier.

Dive bombers strafed the outer areas of the great city. Other planes, incessantly circling, showered incendiary and explosive projectiles on both the inner and outer sections of the area.

In the opening stages of the assault at dusk Sunday, the great attack followed the same pattern as the Saturday night-Sunday morning raid in which 400 persons were killed and 1,300 others wounded.

There was a lull around midnight. Then the tireless raiders developed a stronger assault than before and the explosions became progressively heavier and more frequent.

"Peak Not Reached Yet."

Some of the heaviest explosions were heard within an hour after a broadcast from Berlin had said that a fleet of Germany's most powerful planes loaded with super bombs had headed for London just before midnight.

Despite the severity of the raids, a British air ministry official commented, "We have not reached the top note of this crescendo of air attacks."

GERMANS DROP SUPER BOMBS IN LONDON RAID

Blast Close to Houses of Parliament.

The homeless and the bereaved poor and rich men, women, and children, huddled in air raid shelters as the German bombers swept over.

They came first at twilight after a day of scattered fighting along the coast north of Dover. On thru the dark hours the Germans drove in, seemingly in greater numbers than the estimated 700 attackers of Saturday night.

Two barrage balloons plummeted down in flames. The streets of the great city were empty save for fire trucks and ambulances and an occasional night worker who had to walk to his job.

Some managed to travel part way by subway. Trainmen quietly shepherded passengers in and out of the cars.

Central London Guns Roar.

Within a few seconds after the alarm had sounded at 7:58 p. m. Sunday, violent antiaircraft fire broke out in central London. This was followed by the screech of scream bombs and the boom of explosions.

An air ministry communique said that eight enemy planes had been destroyed during the day and revised German losses Saturday, adding 11 more planes shot down, making the new total 99.

Observers in the areas where the hostile planes were flying overhead described the reception of antiaircraft fire as the heaviest since the great raids on London started.

The night alarm was the second raid warning of a sabbath otherwise calm and peaceful after the great all-night raid that ended at dawn Sunday. The daytime first warning lasted 51 minutes, starting at 12:29 p. m.

The Nazis' first objective was the place hit heaviest Saturday, London's dockyard. There was a brief, ominous lull. Then all hell broke loose, as one observer put it.

There were whining, quivering, reverberating blasts—or dull crunches, depending on how close the bombs were falling. One German bomber was believed shot down while passing over the area bristling with antiaircraft fire. There was a dull blast that sounded as tho the plane had exploded.

Dive Bombers Attack.

Dive bombers roared down on the metropolitan area, dropped their loads, and zoomed back to the clouds. Virtually all of London's antiaircraft guns were going at once. As they roared flashes of lightning also were visible.

Preceding the dive bombers were others which flew high and unloaded rack after rack of bombs in screaming clusters on the London area. A fire in the area, reflected by low hanging clouds, cast its glow over the city.

A time bomb exploded near a hospital where many of those injured in Saturday's bombings were getting blood transfusions in the accident ward. A large lump of granite was blown against a wall within a foot of a window of the ward and the lighting system was affected but first aid work continued by candle light.

German bombers in the Saturday night assault turned this sprawling capital of eight and a half million into an arena of havoc, raking both sides of the Thames, with its docks and factories but splattering bombs beyond the limits of strictly military objectives.

The Major Smashes.

British officialdom acknowledged the severity of that attack but asserted that the damage, "judged against the background of the war, is not serious."

The major smashes were on the two banks of the Thames east of the city, causing three "extensive" dock fires and a number of lesser blazes.

Bombs hit a utility plant, docks of the port of London authority among others, a tar refinery, two schools, a church and a chapel, and houses in various districts, as listed by official reports and independent surveys.

BOMB BY BOMB STORY OF RAIDER'S MISSION BROADCAST BY NAZIS

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—For the first time in radio history, the German wireless reported today, German stations were hooked up with a broadcast from a German bomber which took part in today's raid on Britain.

The announcer, sitting with a microphone next to the pilot, said he had a clear view in front and on both sides.

"I see a jet of fire from a big conflagration," he said as the plane flew towards London. "But soon the fire disappears behind a thick veil of smoke. There is an infernal noise everywhere over the town. Suddenly the clouds open and we see houses, a residential quarter, and again the river Thames. We look down along the Thames.

"Our mission is fulfilled. We turn home in a short circle. Enemy aircraft are firing at us. We are in the midst of their fire and steer our airplane closer to that of our commander. We steer homewards and, going higher, we are soon out of reach of those bellowing guns."

CANADIANS BAG 11 PLANES IN NIGHT; POLES DOWN 13

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Canadian squadron of the royal air force accounted for 11 Nazi raiders during last night's fighting, bringing their total bag past the 100 mark.

The Canadians, paced by their legless squadron leader, Douglas Bader, were credited with dispersing a big formation of bombers and their escort of fighting planes in an engagement two miles above the earth.

The Polish squadron attached to the R. A. F. was credited with bringing down 10 bombers and fighters last night, bringing their total to 25 for four days.

BRITISH SAY THEY WILL EAT EVEN IF LONDON IS RAZED

Food Supplies Are Spread Over Country.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Despite numerous fires in warehouses on the Thames, it was stated in authoritative quarters tonight that Britain's food supplies already are so spread out that devastation of all of London in air raids probably would not cause any tightening of rations.

The ministry of transport has announced arrangements for helping workers to get to their jobs tomorrow morning with the least possible delay. The Southern railway declared it was making every effort to resume operations as quickly as possible, but that passengers in some south London suburbs might have to rely on buses and other forms of transport. The Great Western railway, whose services have not been affected, is helping the Southern railway by introducing new schedules in districts in which both operate. The widest possible flexibility will be given to holders of commutation tickets.

Dock Repairs Pushed.

Repair work at London docks went on all day. The port of London issued a statement admitting that damage by fire was considerable but asserted that "discharging and loading facilities are intact and that port services will be maintained." This was issued before German airplane attacks were resumed tonight.

Regarding the attacks on the dock area, it is asserted that German bombers of the 215 type, each with a crew of four or five, approached London yesterday in flights of eight and nine, each escorted by half a dozen fighters, an unprecedented proportion. As each group neared its targets the fighters wheeled about and flew back toward the next group to protect oncoming formations while the bombers dropped their loads. The bombings were carried out from 12,000 feet.

Altho this correspondent last night saw serious fires, several of which were comparable to anything he has ever seen, lighting London streets and rooftops, the newspapers continue to assert that the royal air force bombings in Germany were more effective, "producing more important military results."

See a German Weakness.

Despite the fact that the airplanes now overhead repeatedly select certain areas for concentrated attacks, official comment on these raids tonight informed the public that "Saturday's raid on London disclosed a possible weakness in Germany's air strength."

The official commentator said that in concentrating on London the Germans revealed that their fighter strength is not comparable with the bomber strength. This statement was made in the face of the Daily Telegraph's air correspondent's declaration that in the daylight attack on the port of London each bomber was escorted by six fighters.

The idea that the attack last night was a reprisal for bombardment of Berlin was dismissed and it was declared that the Nazi plan of the last few weeks has "been to send bombers and fighters over this country to inflict as many casualties as possible on our fighter defense."

Bombers' Presence Explained.

Heretofore, during the bombardments of the south and southeast coasts, newspapers have announced in headlines: "Nazi attempts to penetrate London defenses smashed." Now, however, official comment states that "it is impossible for our fighters to prevent every bomber from getting thru. If we had four times as many, or even a greater proportion than that of fighters, it would still be impossible to prevent some of the bombers from reaching the capital."

Cockney east enders who last night, according to the local mayor, "took it on the chin," carried on the best possible today. Blocks of houses were destroyed during the bombardment and occupants with families gathered up their few remaining possessions, piled them in baby buggies, and with children in their arms trekked to friends and relatives.

Steamers Take out 2,000.

As fires raged all around, threatening at any moment their little houses in the dockland's back streets, 2,000 other refugees were evacuated by pleasure steamers in what is described as a "miniature Dunkirk."

Hundreds of other housewives were confronted with the task of cooking Sunday dinner without gas or water. They borrowed water from more fortunate neighbors and lit fires to roast meat joints.

Dockyard pubs carried on business, tho many had to sweep shattered glass and debris from the floors before opening.

In several streets neighbors raised collections to provide fares for unfortunates forced to leave the district to find billets elsewhere.

GERMANY'S LARGEST WARPLANE HAS SPEED OF 225 MILES PER HOUR

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The largest German military plane of which there is any record is the Junkers JU89. Powered with four 12 cylinder liquid cooled engines, it is rumored to have a speed of 225 miles an hour.

Jane's All the World Aircraft, authoritative aviation manual of British origin, lacks other specifications for obvious reasons. Jane's lists the JU89's lower powered commercial sister, the JU90, as capable of carrying a 14,000 pound load—40 passengers and baggage.

The JU90 has a 115 foot wingspread and is more than 86 feet long.

Planes of this type—used to ferry soldiers to Norway—were reported seen over London last week.

COL. M'CORMICK HAILS ISLE BASES AS DEFENSE AID

Analyzes North American Invasion Barriers.

No country is now, or ever has been, as favored geographically as the allied countries of North America, the United States and Canada, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, said last night. The two great free peoples, he asserted, have become the greatest force in the world.

Col. McCormick spoke on The Tribune Symphonic hour broadcast from W-G-N over the Mutual network and the network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation. He reviewed the benefits accruing from acquisition of coastal island bases and the alliance with Canada.

Military Advantage Told.

He declared that, with the Panama canal and the bases, we hold the inestimable military advantage of interior lines of communication which will permit us to practice the military doctrine of economy of forces.

"With our outpost islands and our fortified harbors," said Col. McCormick, "we can act on the defensive in either ocean and concentrate our main force for attack on the other. By our Canadian alliance and our new bases we have achieved a two ocean navy."

TEXT OF ADDRESS

Following is the text of Col. McCormick's address:

"Regular listeners to this hour will recall that I have constantly urged the acquisition of the foreign owned islands off our coasts, and an alliance with Canada.

"As these desires have now been realized, let me explain their significance.

"The islands were used by our forebears as bases from which to conquer the mainland.

"Since we have become an independent country they have continued to be used to attack Central America, Mexico, and our southern seacoast.

Canal Relation Strategic.

"You will understand that the threat of these islands was doubled with the opening of the Panama canal, as they are admirably situated to blockade the canal—to bomb it—or to supply armies sent to capture it. That is why it has been the policy of the United States to acquire them, whenever the United States has had a foreign policy of its own.

"For 20 years I have persistently advocated the purchase of all foreign owned islands in American waters. I have equally advocated a continental understanding with Canada. The object has been the safety of the North American continent.

Plans Now in Fruition.

"These plans are now in fruition. Let us examine their significance.

"By far the greatest element is the implementing of the long friendship of the two great peoples of North America, so similar in history, in institutions, and in ideals.

"Now the entire force of these two nations is made available at whatever point a foe may strike.

"Now we have bases on the Atlantic ocean at Newfoundland, at Bermuda, and at several points in the West Indies, from which cruisers and scout planes may operate to locate and mark down any hostile armada coming against us.

Bases to Be Strong Points.

"With destroyers, submarines, and aircraft stationed at these places, protected by suitable garrisons, they will become strong points beyond which an enemy will hesitate to pass, and if properly supported from the mainland, should be impregnable.

"We now have five enormous bodies of water—the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the waters around New York, the Delaware river, Chesapeake bay, and the Caribbean sea—now, thank God, an American lake—in any one of which the fleet may lie protected and concealed, ready to strike any invaders.

"If by some such surprises as overcame the defenses in Europe Newfoundland should be lost; and if Sydney and Halifax were taken with their docks intact; and an army debarked on this continent—the Nova Scotia peninsula is still readily defensible, because the Bay of Fundy and, beyond it, the St. John river, constitute lines to be held while the American mobile army, of which I have spoken several times, is transported to drive the invader into the ocean.

Barriers to Invasion.

"I have said before that a hostile army firmly planted in Nova Scotia would have a choice of an attack past Quebec to Montreal, or against the New England sea coast. The former would involve a direct assault on a narrow front, with the St. Lawrence river and the mountains of Maine in the hands of the defenders and would be a most difficult undertaking. So we must assume that an invasion would contemplate drawing our army into the New Brunswick peninsula and landing in its rear, somewhat as was done in the campaign of Norway and that of Holland and France.

"To put this outflanking army ashore, however, it would be necessary to seize New England ports with sufficient docks and unloading machinery to permit rapid debarkment . . . the only ports which meet these requirements are Portland in Maine, and Portsmouth in New Hampshire.

"I note with great pride and pleasure that our army, unaffected by hysteria, is preparing systematically its share of the national defense, by placing coast defense troops of the National Guard in Portland and Portsmouth, while it prepares the field army I have spoken of before.

Difficult to Reach Shore.

"With these harbors held, or with them thoroly destroyed, the enemy who may have possessed our outposts could NOT land his main force because the machines, which seem to have rendered land defenses abortive, CANNOT be put ashore on the beach like the army of William the Conqueror at Pevensey in 1066, or our own army at Guantanamo in 1898.

"Now, turning to the Pacific; we have our outposts in the Aleutian Islands, with Alaska joined at last to Canada for military purposes and for reinforcements. Just as the men from our northeastern army posts would rush to the assistance of the defenders of Halifax, so would the sturdy Canadians of the northwest come to the support of the American garrisons in Alaska.

Vancouver Potential Base.

"Extend the parallel. Vancouver Sound furnishes a great naval base on the Pacific, comparable to the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the Atlantic, the Columbia river to New York harbor, and San Francisco bay to the Delaware, and San Diego harbor to the Chesapeake. If we acquire the Galapagos Islands we will have southern bases in the Pacific that are equivalent to the islands of the Caribbean sea.

"In the island outpost fortress of Hawaii we have the prototype of Newfoundland and Bermuda that is at once a base for scouting, a strong point for defense, the refueling and repair point for the fleet.

"And so with island outposts covering both our coasts, holding in great strength the canal connecting the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, our fleets may pass freely and secretly from ocean to ocean. Any hostile fleet must circumnavigate South America or Africa, or pass thru the Mediterranean sea, the Suez canal, and the Red sea, the control of which will always be uncertain.

Routes Long and Perilous.

"By any one of these routes the time of passage would run months longer than the passage of the Panama canal. And fraught with a variety of dangers from which our fleet is exempt.

"With the Panama canal and the bases, we hold the inestimable military advantage of interior lines of communications which will permit us to practice the military doctrine of economy of forces.

"With our outpost islands and our fortified harbors we can act on the defensive in either ocean and concentrate our main force for attack on the other. By our Canadian alliance and our new bases we have achieved a two ocean navy.

Whole Continent Controled.

"If you will glance at the globe you will see that no country is now, or ever has been, as favored geographically as the allied countries of North America. No other controls an entire continent as we do. None has such island outposts. None has such harbors for battle fleets. None has absolute control of a canal connecting the two oceans. No other can stand absolutely secure on the defensive in one ocean and concentrate its entire naval force in the other.

"The two great free peoples of the North American continent, implemented by the islands of their coasts, controling all the ports on the Atlantic, from the north pole to the equator, and on the Pacific from the north pole to Mexico, irrespective of what happens in Europe, have become the strongest force in the world."

SYMPHONIC PROGRAM

Marion Claire, soprano, and her husband, Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, returned to the Symphonic hour last night after their vacation absence. They were greeted with hearty applause by the studio audience and with a brilliant performance by the orchestra which won the musicians a salute from Weber as the program concluded.

Announcer John Weigel interrupted the prepared program to give Weber a personal greeting from the staff of W-G-N and ask him to conduct "Tales from the Vienna Woods" because "we believe there is no other conductor who conducts the Johann Strauss waltzes in more infectious style." Weber obliged.

Two other orchestral highlights were the introduction and wedding march from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or" and the prelude to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner.

Miss Claire celebrated her return with an outstanding presentation of "Hat Dich die Liebe Berührt" [Has Love Touched You] by Joseph Marx.

She also was heard with the W-G-N chorus in the "Angelus" and the finale from Victor Herbert's operetta, "Sweethearts" and in the Bird Song from "Pagliacci."

The Symphonic hour was produced under the supervision of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N.

DRAFT INDUSTRY ACT IS APPROVED BY STIMSON AID

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 8 (AP).—Robert P. Patterson, a former federal judge, now assistant secretary of war, declared today he could see "no valid objection" to the Smith "draft industry" amendment to the general conscription bill passed by the house.

"It is merely a provision for the exercise of eminent domain, the taking of property for public use with payment of fair value to the owner," he told the junior bar conference, which assembled a day in advance of the American Bar association convention.

"The same obligation that takes the soldier into the field for training takes industry into the production of military equipment," Patterson asserted.

Patterson spoke of "wholehearted and thoro" coöperation of industry in the defense program and expressed the belief that any industrial conscription act "would be rarely, if ever, put into operation." He did not mention the draft industry act passed by the senate calling for condemnation of plants if they refused defense orders.

Six thousand lawyers are expected for the four day meeting, which will be keyed to the lawyer's place in the nation's defense program.

PREDICT REVOLTS AGAINST FRENCH IN WEST INDIES

Petain Regime Opposed in Islands and Guiana.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 8.—Revolts against the Vichy government in France are expected soon in French West Indies Islands of Guadeloupe and Martinique, and French Guiana, according to persons who have returned from these territories in the last few days.

In French Guiana, which adjoins Brazil on the northwest, 80 per cent of the officials were said to be openly against Marshal Petain. They favor continuance of the war on the side of Great Britain. A plebiscite to determine the will of the colony's population is being considered.

Similar situations exist in Guadeloupe and Martinique. It was said most of the people of these islands favor adherence to the "free" France rule set up in London by Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Should Guadeloupe and Martinique decide to join the De Gaulle movement, it is expected they would defend the islands with the armed forces already there. Such a decision also might have an important bearing on the hemisphere defense which the United States is seeking to bolster by leasing a string of naval and air bases from Great Britain.

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID NAZI BARGES IN CHANNEL PORTS

Strike at Other Targets in Germany, France.

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—British bombers attacked German shipping in Nazi occupied channel ports Saturday night, the air ministry reported today. The attacks, the ministry said, were carried out despite poor visibility and strong German defenses. The following blows were dealt, according to the air ministry announcement:

Hits at Calais, France, across from Dover, where bombs burst between the basin and the entrance to the harbor. Gun emplacements and search light batteries there also were bombed.

Claim Hangar Hit.

Bombardment of the Colmar airdrome, in France, where a hangar was hit and aircraft set afire.

Fires started by bombs at Boulogne, France.

Direct hits on barges at Ostend, Belgium, and heavy attacks on barges at Dunkirk, France.

Attacks on the Krupp works at Essen, war factories at Emden and Zwelbrucken and the oil plant at Gelsenkirchen, all in Germany.

Bomb explosions on rail depots at Mannheim, Ehrang, and Hamm, Germany.

Attacks on Airdromes.

Airdrome attacks at Gilzerijen, Wesel, and Krefeld, in Germany, Brussels in Belgium, Querqueville in France, and Soesterburg and Eindhoven in the Netherlands.

"From these widespread operations all our aircraft returned," the communique said.

The admiralty also reported that British dive bombers and torpedo seaplanes had attacked two German supply ships off the coast of Norway and left one of them sinking and the other with a "heavy list." The admiralty communique said:

"Aircraft of the fleet air arm have again been operating over the coast of Norway. Skuas [dive bombers] and Swordfish planes sighted two enemy supply ships. A hit was obtained on one of these, and the ship was last seen abandoned and sinking.

"The other was seriously damaged by near misses and was last seen stopped and with a heavy list and abandoned by her crew. These were the only two ships seen. All our aircraft returned safely."

Ontario Taxi Hits Truck; 2 Soldiers Die; 4 Hurt

PETAWAWA, Ont., Sept. 8 (AP).—Two soldiers were killed and four injured when their taxi crashed into a parked civilian truck near here last night. The dead were Lance-Bombardiers George Lang of Shawinigan Falls, Que., and Alex Joseph Rochefort of Uxbridge, Middlesex, England.

TOUR OF BRITISH COAST REVEALS 'SLIGHT DAMAGE'

Facts Appear Hidden, Says Writer.

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 8 [Censored].—In order to investigate conflicting reports of aerial bomb damage on the southern coast, The Tribune correspondent journeyed this week to most of the ports from Dover to Plymouth.

The conclusion he reached is that surprisingly slight damage appears to have been done in view of the large numbers of Nazi planes taking part in the daily forays against the harbors and naval bases in this area. It must be emphasized, however, that authorities, including the local police and air raid wardens, in most cases not only refuse to point out the extent of the bomb destruction but conceal the damage as a patriotic duty.

Much Truth Apparently Hidden.

Judging by some of the admitted bomb damage, indicating a high degree of accuracy by German bomber crews, The Tribune correspondent cannot help but feel that considerable of the truth has been kept quiet. Obviously, it is impracticable for one man to search every acre in an entire city; the investigator must rely to a large extent on the clews he can glean from local residents and authorities.

In Plymouth, for example, there have been many raids, but the local air raid precautions wardens state that only eight persons have been killed according to published reports, and that only negligible damage has been done to dock equipment. Virtually no sign of damage is visible as one drives around the town, and the average resident apparently knows of none except for what is reported in the papers, indicating either that the damage was slight or that the worst of it occurred in places where the public is not allowed, such as military areas or the interior of factories.

Nazi Accuracy Indicated.

If the latter is the case, German pilots must be considerably more accurate than they generally are given credit for. This correspondent is unable to explain otherwise how so many residents can see distant bomb flashes during the frequent air raids and yet know so little about the resultant destruction.

In Bournemouth, The Tribune correspondent unearthed relatively few details of hits scored during admitted massed air raids, but some of these suggested remarkable accuracy by the Germans despite the fact they were attributed to luck by the British authorities and that private property mostly was damaged.

A number of air fields along the coast were raided but none was reported seriously hit. The ports are still being used and little damage is visible, but a number of residents tell details of the destruction seen among houses.

FAKE CHUTIST ALARM SENDS BRITISHERS ON A WILD GOOSE CHASE

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—A false alarm signaling a parachute invasion which didn't take place sent home guards in a southwest town hustling to their posts during last night's big air raid on London.

Tolling church bells, the signal that parachutists are coming down, began the alarm which later was taken up and spread by messenger, automobile, and loudspeaker. During the unexplained alarm streets were cleared of all civilian traffic and thruout the night all abroad were stopped and questioned.

The mystery deepened when it was learned that church bells pealed out a similar false alarm in a northeastern area of Wales. Parishioners, police, and other authorities were unable to account for the alarms.

DUTCH NAZIS AND FOES BATTLE AT HAGUE; ONE DEAD

Others Injured; Germans Oust Police Chief.

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands, Sept. 8 (AP) [via Berlin].—A street battle at The Hague between Dutch Nazis and their opponents, in which one person was killed and a number injured, was disclosed tonight with dismissal of The Hague police chief, E. Van Der Mey.

The German commissioner, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, said the chief took inadequate measures to prevent the clash, and replaced him with Public Security Minister Rauter.

The official German version of the incident said that about 200 members of the Dutch Nazi Youth organization, accompanied by members of the Dutch version of the Nazi Storm Troopers, were parading when a cyclist rode into the procession "with provocative intent" and a fight resulted.

Wide Curfew Ordered.

LONDONERS SHOW NEW RESPECT FOR AIR RAID ALARMS

Heed Sirens' First Blast; Run to Shelters.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Map on back page.)

LONDON, Sept. 8. — The nerve wracking ordeal of intensive bombardment seemingly now has taught Londoners more effectively than 12 months of official warnings the need for shelter during air raids.

This was the impression gained from the scene observed tonight at the Elephant and Castle, the junction of six main highways in the southeast London district, when sirens signaled the approach of enemy raiders at 7:55 p. m.

Within seconds the scene was changed. The atmosphere was electric. Hundreds of curious persons had been shuffling around surveying last night's bomb damage. Then there was a sudden kaleidoscopic picture of men, women and children running toward shelters. They dashed across the road junctions disregarding traffic. A few, including the police and air raid wardens, maintained impassivity.

Hotels More Cautious.

In hotels, factories and other places which have attempted to carry on their activities as normally as possible, a similar new respect for the siren warnings also was reported.

Big hotels ordered guests to go underground immediately, Roof top watchers kept continually on the alert.

From the Elephant and Castle, this correspondent jumped on a street car to get to the office but reached only a footbridge spanning the Thames river—a five minute trip—before big bombs started descending. The vibrations shook the car which continued its run as far as some brick shelters where the passengers, motorman, and conductor got out and headed for protection after the car lights had been turned out.

Many Blasts in Few Minutes.

The bombardment lasted only a few minutes but in that time more than 20 explosions made the streets tremble. Ahead, as this correspondent crossed the bridge on foot, a billowing cloud of smoke could be seen ascending in the dim light of the sunset. Above, a big blob of smoke drifted slowly. The roar of the bombs seemed to come from the east and then the unearthly noise of two screaming bombs was heard to the rear.

Street cars and buses pulled up immediately—the decision to halt service rests entirely on the discretion of the motormen and conductors. A few motor cars and a couple of motorcycles, however, carried on over the bridge and half a dozen pedestrians marched on, smoking and unhurried, lending a touch of normalcy to central London's wartime landscape.

Impression of Bombings.

The eight mile road journey from the outer London area to The Tribune bureau—by bus and tram, another tram, bus, tram, and foot—gave a movie impression of the effect of the mass bombings of last night and this morning. Normally only two speedy buses are required for the journey. In the suburbs, damage appeared to be confined mostly to small craters in roadways but there were a few roofless houses. Highways were roped off, forcing public transports to detour around the back streets.

Entering the city, however, the picture changed. Time and again this correspondent saw groups of men and women, some with tiny babies in their arms and older children clinging to their skirts, standing outside the shelters where, even before any warning was sounded, they were preparing to spend the night.

These scenes were witnessed mostly in streets scarred here and there with the black desolation of fire and showing occasional jagged gaps in long lines of masonry. For the first time since Sept., 1939, Londoners now have visual evidence of the disastrous effects of total warfare.

Actors Marry

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Peggy Stewart and her new husband, Donald Barry, after their marriage in Hollywood, Cal.

Hollywood, Cal. Sept. 8 (AP).—Screen Actress Peggy Stewart, 18 years old, and Donald Barry, 29, western film actor, were married yesterday. Miss Stewart came to Hollywood four years ago from Atlanta, Ga., and has played in a number of pictures. Barry has been in western films for five years.

DALADIER JAILED UNDER WAR LAW THAT HE ISSUED

No Charge, but He's Held as 'Dangerous.'

RIOM, France, Sept. 8 (AP).—Three deposed leaders of old France who are held in the "war blame" cases—former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud and former Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin—were taken into custody under a decree authorized by Daladier himself, it was disclosed today.

The three former officials were arrested yesterday and are being held in strict "administrative internment" at Château Chazeron, a feudal stronghold near Chatelguyon, five miles from this seat of the war guilt trials.

Their detention was ordered under authority of a decree law enacted by Daladier after war broke out on Sept. 3, 1939. It provided for internment of persons considered dangerous to the national defense and public security.

Petain Extends Act.

The authoritarian Petain government issued a supplementary decree last Tuesday stating the Daladier law remains in force until a peace treaty is signed and that persons under its provisions could be placed in special administrative internment. Thus, while no definite charge has been placed against the officials, it was possible to put them under guard.

The supreme court is conducting an investigation to fix responsibility for France's unpreparedness and entry into the war, and on the results of its findings will depend the charges.

The only persons against whom definite charges have been placed are the former air ministers Pierre Cot and Guy la Chambre, who are understood to be in the United States.

Mandel May Face Court.

Former Interior Minister Georges Mandel, accused of having plotted against the security of the state, faces charges before a military tribunal and it is believed he might also be brought before the Riom court. He is in custody at Meknes, Morocco. If his care is merged with the general war blame cases and switched to the supreme court, he would be transferred here.

CAROL ARRIVES AT SWISS RESORT TO BEGIN EXILE

Mystery Woman Remains Aboard Train.

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 8 (AP).—Carol of Rumania, a man without a country, rested tonight in free Switzerland—one of the few enduring refuges in a turbulent Europe which no longer offers a gracious living to ex-kings.

In flight since Friday from Bucharest where his 18 year old son, the former Crown Prince Michael, is the nominal ruler while a strong military dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescu, actually holds power, the banished monarch crossed the Swiss-Italian border at Chiasso late this afternoon.

After a 22 minute wait during which Alexandre Guaranesco, Rumanian minister to Switzerland, and a representative of the Swiss government, boarded the train, the 10 Rumanian coaches and a dining car proceeded to the resort town of Lugano where Carol alighted.

Carol Goes to a Hotel.

Carol was wearing civilian clothes, a soft gray hat and eye glasses. He appeared to be in good spirits. The Rumanian minister, dressed like the Swiss representatives who greeted Carol, in formal clothes and silk toppers, followed the former king from the car.

When Carol emerged, crossing the sidewalk to enter an automobile, the crowd cheered. Carol looked up, smiled, and waved his hand, and the car rolled swiftly to the hotel where an apartment had been engaged for the night.

How long he would remain in Lugano, or in Switzerland, were matters of conjecture.

Just as puzzling was the question of whether red-haired Magda Lupescu, Carol's woman friend of many years, was on the train.

Woman Remains on Train.

There was a red-haired woman in the party of 29 persons that followed Carol from Bucharest and she looked like pictures of Mme. Lupescu, but Erwin Clauss, one of Carol's aids, declared at Milan, Italy, when the train halted there, that this woman was a Mme. Lorenz.

At none of the stops the train made—at Milan, Cervignano di Friuli and Chiasso—and finally at Lugano did "Mme. Lorenz" appear. At Lugano the whole party remained on board while Carol was driven away to the hotel.

Later Carol's suite followed him and installed themselves on the entire second floor of the hotel. A source close to the retinue said he believed Carol's plans were still indefinite.

The former king dined alone. An informed source said "Mme. Lorenz" had taken quarters apart from the rest of the party.

A railroad man said "Mme. Lorenz" traveled with her father in a different car from Carol's.

BULGARIA HAILS DOBRUJA RETURN WITH BIG PARADE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 8 (AP).—Tens of thousands of Bulgarians, celebrating the cession of southern Dobruja by Rumania, passed in review today before the Bulgarian royal family and the cabinet and gave thanks in the nation's churches where special services were held. The government freed hundreds of political prisoners in commemoration of the occasion. Some students in the parade gave the Fascist salute and carried German and Italian flags.

British Re-Enforce Army in Egypt

(Story in adjoining column.)

While Italian communiques reported damage to British sea power in the Mediterranean, the British reported landing their largest detachment of new troops in Egypt.

RUMANIA STRIPS CAROL OF RICHES IN NEW DECREES

Orders Probe of Deals Made by Ministers.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 8 [Passed by Censor].—Bucharest settled down today to its first comparatively normal day in weeks but the populace took heed of a long series of decrees proclaimed by Gen. Ion Antonescu, Rumania's new military dictator.

One decree ordered sequestered former King Carol's stock holdings, his credits and titles, with an estimated value of millions of dollars. Stock Carol held "directly or indirectly" in 10 largest Rumanian companies was declared not negotiable. The shares were ordered deposited with the court within five days. The American managed Rumanian telephone company, a locomotive company, gold mining, sugar, and woolen companies were included in the list.

Antonescu announced that inquiries would be made into the financial affairs of all who served as cabinet ministers or undersecretaries in the last ten years, into the use of all "secret funds" [those not publicly accounted for] of all ministries during the last five years, and into the conduct of all political trials in the last eight years.

Abolishes Ministers' Trains.

He abolished the special trains which have been a prerogative of Rumanian ministers when traveling. He ordered investigation of the national banks' handling of foreign currency and of the disposal of all funds intended for the national defense. He ordered investigation of all orders placed by the Rumanian state railways in the last eight years.

The ministry of culture issued decrees prohibiting Jews from "continuing their blasphemy" of selling religious art objects or having even the remotest connection with anything artistic—even serving as ushers in motion picture theaters. All subordinate employés of the ministry of culture were ordered to resign immediately from masonic organizations.

Among other edicts were the abolition of the youth organization, which will be reorganized later and the junking of the title and office of ambassador.

Pray for King Michael.

By Antonescu's command, too, the populace of Rumania knelt today to pray for Michael, who became king when his father Carol, abdicated on Friday, and to "curse those responsible for the nation's troubles."

The capital's churches were jammed. Traffic stopped for one minute thruout the city. Pedestrians even knelt in front of the palace.

But, while hundreds of officials and politicians undoubtedly felt shaky about the decreed investigations, ordinary civilians took advantage of a pleasant day and turned out in thousands to promenade, to go to Lake Snago outside the town, and to visit the parks. The ban on theaters, movies and gypsy orchestras was lifted. The big thing of the day for the ordinary people of Bucharest was that for the present the atmosphere of tension is gone and they felt more normal.

Await Queen's Return.

The next big event in Rumania's reorganization will be the arrival of Queen Mother Helen, who is expected here tomorrow or Tuesday to resume her title.

The government disclosed a telegram from Adolf Hitler which said the German Fuehrer would follow Antonescu's "constructive work with great sympathy and interest."

At Galati 313 German S. S. troopers, the elite Black Shirt guard, arrived with hundreds of trucks and many trains, as well as the vanguard of a fleet of 25 Nazi Danube river boats which are to remove 90,000 Germans from the province of Bessarabia, ceded by Rumania to soviet Russia.

At Brasov funerals were held for those killed in last week's disorders. It was disclosed that a great many more persons had been slain than at first was reported.

TEN SHOT AS REDS FIGHT JUGO-SLAVIAN POLICE IN STREETS

ZAGREB, Jugo-Slavia, Sept. 8 (AP).—Ten persons were reported seriously wounded today in a gun battle between police and communist demonstrators in the streets. More than 100 demonstrators were arrested. Other outbursts were reported at Split, where many shops were sacked.

Today's clashes were the third in the last few weeks as communists demanded a military alliance between Jugo-Slavia and Russia and assailed the government for its alleged Rome-Berlin axis sympathies.

At Sibenic and Zara, the Sokol athletic organization was disbanded yesterday and its leader arrested after Italy had protested against the organization's anti-Italian demonstrations.

BIGGEST BRITISH CONVOY TO EGYPT ELUDES ITALIANS

Thousands of Troops Go to Middle East Posts.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 8 (AP).—Britain reënforced her middle east fighting forces with thousands of troops landed on the sun-baked quays of an Egyptian port today from the biggest convoy ever to reach Egypt.

A long line of big transports splashed into the light green waters of the harbor during the day after an uneventful voyage from England in which they reported not a single Italian warship was sighted.

The exact number of troops disembarking from ships was not disclosed, but officials said there were "several thousand." They will be dispatched immediately to fronts "somewhere in the middle east," it was stated.

In addition to ground troops there were many Australian airmen, hundreds of nurses from England and Scotland, and several hundred reënforcements for the navy and British air force.

Sent Onward to Posts.

The troops, brought from England by the Red sea route, moved out under full equipment aboard two 15 car trains bound for duty in Egypt and Palestine. Some continued aboard their ships to other ports.

"We are glad to be here even tho we hated to leave our families in England," one soldier said. "But we know our forces there can give Hitler more than he wants, and we've come down here to clean up the Italian side of this war."

A British headquarters communique said today:

"Saturday evening enemy aircraft raided Port Sudan, causing little damage and only one casualty."

Destroy British Patrol Boat.

ROME, Sept. 8 (AP).—Destruction of a British patrol boat and a British submarine in the Mediterranean were reported today by the Italian high command.

The patrol boat, according to the high command's communique, was sunk by an Italian submarine in the approaches of the Strait of Gibraltar.

In an air attack on Malta, Britain's central Mediterranean naval base, Italian flyers reported a direct hit on a British submarine lying in drydock and considerable damage and fires in buildings of the Malta arsenal.

British fighter planes engaged the Italians in battle, the communique said, and two of the British were shot down and a third probably destroyed.

Farther east, in the Red sea, the communique declared, a British convoy was attacked by Italian bombers who damaged one ship so badly it was abandoned.

Another Italian bomber formation attacked the port of Aden without losses. British fighters who tried to repel the attackers lost a plane, the high command said.

It also reported a British air attack on Buna [Italian held town in Kenya colony] and said one native soldier was killed.

MANY IN FRANCE FAVOR BRITISH, LISBON IS TOLD

Emigres Relate Life Under Petain.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 1 [By Air Mail].—Here in Lisbon one can obtain a great deal of information concerning France from persons who have just arrived from that country.

A French officer on his way to London to join the "Free French" forces under Gen. Charles de Gaulle, said he believed many more Frenchmen would be in England now but for threats of retaliation against their families and property.

This officer also said many Frenchmen realize the true position of the Vichy government—a German puppet régime, he called it—despite attempts to encourage the people by promises of a rosy future. It is a difficult task, he said, to overcome the natural hostility in France to Germany.

Tells of Petain's Support.

The chief support of the government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, the officer declared, apparently springs from the small business class, which has been won over by Nazi promises, and from politicians who are out for personal gain.

There is only a little interest, he said, in the forthcoming "war blame" trials of officials charged with having let France down. This, he said, results chiefly from charges that some of the worst offenders are to play the rôle of judge and jury at the trials and that some of the leaders now in interment camps are merely victims of Vice Premier Pierre Laval's personal vengeance.

Nazis Direct Auto Plants.

The officer also reported that French automobile plants and other industries are being reopened with French labor under German supervision.

Other visitors to Lisbon report that the French colonies in Africa now are sympathetic to England, and in some quarters the hope is expressed that they may set up an independent government. Such an arrangement, these persons asserted, would be the beginning of the creation of a new France.

Still others talk about German attempts to convince the French of their ability to run the country better, and there are reports of bad living conditions in certain areas and food problems in other sections.

Sabotage Draws "Threats."

Among other reports are these:

The Nazis have put up posters threatening the lives of Frenchmen held by the Germans if violence and sabotage continue.

German propaganda posters depicting friendship of the German soldier for the population are defaced or torn down soon after they appear.

Conditions in concentration camps are bad, with the conquerors usurping available food supplies in order to strengthen their anti-British propaganda.

CHARGES ENVOYS WITH NEGLECTING STRANDED YANKS

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 8 [Special].—Congressman Paul W. Shafer [R., Mich.] today accused Ambassadors Anthony J. Drexel Biddle and William C. Bullitt of neglecting their diplomatic posts in Spain and France while they campaign for President Roosevelt and lobby for the conscription bill.

He made the charge in connection with a plea for aid in evacuating Mrs. Florence M. Nevin and her daughter, Miss Alice Nevin, who are stranded in Portugal.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CHICAGO R. O. T. C. UNITS HELD DOWN BY LACK OF CASH

Possibility of Expansion Told by Schoolman.

Chicago's public high schools could provide Reserve Officers' Training corps instruction to 20,000 students if the war department were able to provide the necessary funds, Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools, said yesterday. An enrollment of 20,000 would more than double the present number of enrollees, estimated at 9,800 for the 1940-1941 school year.

The actual number of cadets is only about 7,800, because approximately 2,000 of the enrollees are freshmen. The freshmen receive drill instruction, but wear no uniforms and are not considered cadets.

Repeated Efforts Made.

"Mr. McCahey [James B. McCahey, president of the board of education] and Dr. Johnson [Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson] have tried repeatedly to have the Chicago R. O. T. C. program expanded," Maj. Beals said. "But the war department has been unable to respond to their requests due to lack of funds."

Maj. Beals said the units now in existence in 27 Chicago high schools could be expanded and new units installed in several schools. As possible locations for new units he mentioned Farragut, Gage Park, Manley, Medill, Parker, Phillips, Taft, and South Shore high schools.

Thruout the country some 300 schools have applied for R. O. T. C. units for which there are no funds available, Maj. Beals said. The new national defense program did not include appropriations for expansion of the R. O. T. C., he added.

Chicago Program Largest.

The Chicago program is the largest in the nation, and has shown consistent growth since it was first installed. During the first year, 1919 and 1920, about 14,500 high school students received compulsory R. O. T. C. instruction. The following year the number was arbitrarily cut to 3,000 when the teaching personnel provided by the war department was reduced and enrollment was made voluntary.

In 1935 President McCahey obtained nine new units, bringing the total to the present 27, and enrollment in the 1936-1937 school year reached 5,700. This was increased to 7,100 in 1937-1938, to 7,400 in 1938-1939, and to 7,500 in 1939-1940. A further increase of 300 uniformed cadets was authorized by the war department for this year, but many students who desire to take R. O. T. C. courses will be unable to do so, Maj. Beals said.

Five additional regular army sergeants will be assigned to Chicago as instructors this year, bringing to 41 the number of sergeants attached to the Chicago R. O. T. C. There are also five commissioned officers, headed by Col. William F. Morrison.

Parental Consent Needed.

Students wishing to enter the four-year high school R. O. T. C. course must obtain the written consent of their parents. Completion of the course, which is termed junior division training [senior division training is given to university students], does not entitle the student to any status in the military service.

"In the event of war, R. O. T. C. graduates will be far better prepared than those who have had no military experience," Maj. Beals said.

Tell Why Roosevelt Spurned Island Bases as Outright Gift

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain wanted to make a grand gesture to the American people by donating outright leases for American air and naval bases in the British western hemisphere possessions from Newfoundland to British Guiana. Only at President Roosevelt's insistence did the British government reluctantly consent to make the base leases available on a barter basis in exchange for 50 American destroyers.

Winston Churchill.

This amazing detail of the destroyers-for-bases deal was disclosed today in official quarters. It explains Mr. Roosevelt's insistence at a press conference on Aug. 16 that American destroyers were in no way involved in the pending negotiations with Great Britain for the acquisition of air and naval bases and also this strange declaration in Mr. Roosevelt's message to congress last Tuesday:

"The right to bases in Newfoundland and Bermuda are gifts—generously given and gladly received."

Six Others for Warships.

The President's message added that 50 destroyers had been exchanged for bases in the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, Antigua, and British Guiana.

The acceptance of the base leases in Newfoundland and Bermuda as gifts represented a compromise whereby the administration recognized at least the principle insisted upon by Prime Minister Churchill.

Mr. Roosevelt's insistence upon bartering the destroyers for base leases that were offered as gifts was motivated by two considerations, according to information emanating from the cabinet.

One was his desire to present the deal to the country as a Yankee trade in which he had driven a hard bargain.

The second and more important reason was the President's fear of the political consequences if he should undertake to sell destroyers to the British or transfer them in any other manner.

Fearful of Congress.

The British wanted the destroyers and Mr. Roosevelt was determined to comply with their wishes. But a sale of the destroyers, or any circuitous device of transferring them thru Canada, was certain to provoke a storm in congress. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson had ruled as recently as last June that the transfer of the navy's "mosquito" boats to Great Britain would violate a 1917 statute which forbids taking any warship out of the jurisdiction of the United States with intent or reasonable cause to believe that it shall be used by a belligerent nation.

The proffer of air and naval bases, therefore, was seized upon as an opportunity to get rid of the destroyers without taking too much of a political risk. Acquisition of the air and naval bases was certain to be popular, since some of the foremost opponents of the President's foreign policy had been demanding these very bases.

Plan Dismissed as "Silly."

Never before, in any of his speeches, remarks, or writings, had Mr. Roosevelt indicated that he attached any importance to these bases as outposts for the defense of the United States. On the contrary, as recently as last March 5, he pronounced "silly" a resolution by Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] calling for acquisition of the bases in settlement of the British war debt of 5½ billion dollars.

Churchill's motive in wishing to give the bases to the United States also was two-fold. The obvious purpose was to promote the popularity of the British cause in the United States. Another reason, however, concerned British politics.

Churchill's Tory party for many years had opposed all proposals to barter or sell their insular possessions in this hemisphere. In 1923 Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States, greeted with a snort of derision a proposal to acquire the islands.

Never to "Sell" Subjects.

"Great Britain," he said, "will never sell her subjects into prohibition slavery." Other members of the British government asserted that "Britain does not traffic in the lives and nationality of her subjects."

Because of this lofty British attitude the question of transferring sovereignty of the western hemisphere possessions was not even mentioned in negotiations for the bases.

The public reaction to the deal apparently has confirmed Mr. Roosevelt's expectations. Acquisition of the bases greatly diminished opposition to the destroyer transfer. Release of the destroyers has been denounced by noninterventionists in congress as an act of war and Mr. Roosevelt has been accused by Republican leaders of usurping the powers of a dictator. Republicans in the house, however, have abandoned tentative consideration of introducing an impeachment resolution, and thus far there has been no explosion in the senate.

HOAN IS SLATED FOR POSITION IN DEFENSE SETUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 8.—Daniel W. Hoan, Socialist mayor of Milwaukee for 24 years until defeated last spring, has been recommended by Fiorella La Guardia, mayor of New York, for an important post in the national defense. La Guardia, chairman of the United States division of the Canadian-United States Joint Defense board, announced his recommendation in New York tonight. He urged Hoan's appointment to the National Defense commission's division of state and local coöperation, to deal with coördinating defense activities.

Hoan is now in the east, where he was invited by La Guardia to participate in a September meeting of the United States Conference of Mayors, altho Hoan no longer is a mayor.

La Guardia is president of the mayor's conference and Hoan is a former president.

WILLKIE'S PARTY WILL TRAVEL ON TRAIN OF 12 CARS

Nominee to Visit 18 States on 7,200 Mile Jaunt.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rushville, Ind., Sept. 8.—Twelve cars of standard railroad equipment will form the train which Wendell L. Willkie boards here next Thursday night to carry his Republican Presidential campaign thru 18 states between Indiana and the west coast.

The nominee's wide swing will take him almost 7,200 miles in 15 days. At his southernmost point he will be in San Diego, just across the Mexican border from Tia Juana, and on the north he reaches Seattle, some 150 miles from the Canadian international boundary.

Willkie's trek for votes will bring him into the Democratic south at Amarillo, Tex., and across the southwestern desert to California. He will comb the Pacific coast line to Seattle, then strike eastward thru the northwest wheat and mining country and on across the plains to the middle western corn land. Rushville is the starting point and Freeport, Ill., the terminus.

Lone Air Leg Planned.

Except for an airplane flight from Albuquerque, N. M., to Riverside, Cal., Willkie will make all of this journey on his special train. He and Mrs. Willkie, their son, Philip, and one of the nominee's four brothers, Ed Willkie, will travel in the last car which contains five rooms, a kitchen, dining room, and a lounge.

This car has a rear platform from which Willkie is scheduled to make almost 50 short talks. The platform is about 12 feet wide, and 5 feet 9 inches deep, leaving standing space for probably 10 people, and will be equipped with microphone and loud speakers.

The eleventh car will be a combination room and lounge car, and will be used by members of Willkie's staff. Ahead of it will be a diner—the only car which will not make the complete trip. It will be changed from time to time as the train leaves the lines of one railroad for those of another.

46 Reporters in Party.

A lounge car for the use of visitors boarding the train for short trips will precede the diner and next in line is a second staff car. Then come three compartment cars which will be occupied by the 46 reporters who will make the complete swing. This is said to be the largest number of newspaper men ever to accompany a Presidential nominee. One of the press cars will have a lounge for interviews.

Representatives of telegraph companies and the three radio chains will fill the next two cars, and ahead of them, in the second car, will be quarters for Willkie's research staff and others of his party.

In the first car, directly behind the locomotive and tender, will be a photographer's dark room, a compartment for radio equipment, and mimeographing facilities.

Loudspeakers Thru Train.

The loudspeakers on the rear platform will be piped into the visitors' lounge and the diner, so that Willkie's extemporaneous remarks at brief station stops will be carried to reporters and others who would run the risk of being stranded in crowds if they left the train to hear the nominee.

It is probable that the train will carry an average of 100 persons and this will be swelled from time to time.

New York, Sept. 8 [Special].—Within five minutes after the Pan-American Airways Atlantic Clipper had taken off here today for Lisbon the Bermuda Clipper arrived. The Atlantic Clipper carried seven passengers and 2,319 pounds of mail, while the Bermuda Clipper landed with 16 passengers and 686 pounds of mail.

Among the passengers on the Atlantic Clipper was John S. Winant, former governor of New Hampshire and at present a director of the international labor organization, which has its headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Another passenger on the flying boat was Eirene Redmond Naismith, a British aviator and motion picture actress. She said she was returning to England to offer her services to the British air ministry.

DEMANDS PROBE OF UNMARKED ASYLUM GRAVES

Legislator Bares Loss of Woman's Body.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on back page.)

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 8.—On a weed grown knoll near a refuse dump in the Illinois hospital for the insane at Bartonville, south of here, are two long rows of sticks, rusted pieces of pipe, and broken boards stuck into the ground at various angles. They are markings for about 270 graves lacking any apparent means of identification. A count can't be made with certainty. There are no mounds and some of the improvised markers appear to be lost.

This final resting place provided for its patients by the state of Illinois was brought to public attention today by a letter received by State's Attorney John E. Dougherty from Representative Arnold L. Lund of Riverside, Ill., demanding a grand jury investigation. Mrs. J. Kopesky, 2310 Wesley avenue, Berwyn, complained to the legislator that the body of her mother, Mrs. Mary Krieche, has been lost in this cemetery.

Patient Since 1908.

Mrs. Krieche, a patient since 1908, died on Sept. 15, 1939. A notice was mailed by the institution to a former address of her husband. It was returned undelivered. The body was buried with others unclaimed on the unkempt hilltop.

Months later, Mrs. Kopesky first learned of the death of her mother. She made arrangements for a burial in her family cemetery lot. Among these arrangements, she said, was a payment of $34.50 at the hospital office to cover the taxpayers' expense of the institution burial.

There were delays that aroused the daughter's apprehension. She visited the institution. There, she said, Dr. I. J. Turow refunded her $34.50 with a statement that the mother's grave could not be identified.

He Is Vacationing.

Dr. Turow is on vacation. Acting as managing director is the clinical director, Dr. Bernard Skorodin, who was transferred to Bartonville two weeks ago from the Manteno institution, scene of an epidemic that resulted in the indictment and conviction of Director of Public Welfare A. L. Bowen.

"There's some mistake," said Dr. Skorodin. "The caretaker can identify the grave. We keep a chronological record of the burials. The graves are in rows. I don't know his system, but I suppose he can count back on our death records and then count back on his rows of graves."

There are an average of 2,600 patients in the institution, about half men and half women. Their death rate is high, 224 last year. Most of the bodies are claimed by relatives for private burial. About 50 to 60 a year are added to the institution's cemetery.

Pre-Horner System.

An inspection of the cemetery shows that before the administration of Gov. Henry Horner, each of these graves received a concrete headstone bearing a number for permanent identification. These older sections of the burial ground, with their uniform markers rows, resemble a military cemetery.

The atmosphere of sanctity in the older sections has been blotted, however, by recent desecrations. At one place, garbage has been dumped at the border of the old grave yard, about 200 feet from one of the ward buildings. At another place, tin cans and junk have been dumped in an arroyo between two slopes with rows of concrete markers.

At the end of the newest row in the cemetery were three holes of an appropriate size to receive pine coffins. They were covered with boards prepared for the next deaths among these patients without their full minds and many without friends or relatives to bury them.

Garden Vegetables Planted.

In this same row were 17 other graves as shown by the scrap wood or sticks at the heads. Weeds had not grown over them. Someone, probably some of the inmates, had planted corn and radishes over these.

The budgets of the institution were $980,529.50 for the 1933-'35 biennium and $1,390,402 for the '39-'41 biennium. Gov. Horner has been too ill for the last two years to perform his duties. Director Bowen is appealing his conviction in the Manteno case. Dwight Green, Republican candidate for governor, requested Representative Lund to make a thoro investigation.

I TURNED TO CAMELS FOR EXTRA MILDNESS AND FOUND SEVERAL OTHER SWELL EXTRAS, TOO, INCLUDING EXTRA SMOKING. SLOWER BURNING SURE IS THE TICKET FOR STEADY SMOKING

● YOU WATCH THAT BALL go screaming off the tee and you shake your head. How does he do it? Form, timing, power, wrist action, control . . . he has them all—but Lawson Little has that extra measure of each which makes the difference between a good golfer and a champion golfer. Just as the extras in his favorite cigarette . . . Camel . . . make the difference between smoking and smoking pleasure at its best.

● WATCH OUT, PAR—here comes Little! No, Lawson Little is never content unless he can better par . . . in his golf . . . in his cigarette. "I want all the mildness I can get in my cigarette," he says. "Camels burn slower and give me extra mildness. And Camels also give me something else I never found before—flavor that doesn't tire my taste." Yes, Camels give all the qualities you want in a cigarette plus an extra measure of each. The extra flavor of costlier tobaccos preserved by slower burning. The natural mildness and coolness of costlier tobaccos plus freedom from the irritating qualities of too-fast burning. And on top of extra pleasure—Camels give extra value (see right).

2 AUTOS STRIKE A 3D AMIDSHIPS; 9 PERSONS HURT

Collide at a Protected Crossing in Berwyn.

Nine persons were injured in a spectacular collision yesterday when two automobiles, traveling in opposite directions, struck another car amidships as it was crossing their paths. The crash occurred at Roosevelt road and Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn.

Evald Johnson, 50 years old, of Rockford, was driving in Roosevelt road when cars approached from the north and south in Ridgeland avenue. The northbound car was driven by Frank Strutz, 32, of 1417 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn. The southbound car was driven by Fred Faulkner Jr., 27, of 4403 Maypole avenue.

All Taken to Hospitals.

Johnson was injured, as were the others in his car: his wife, Minnie, 44, their son, Roland, 19, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Johnson of Rockford [no relation to the Evald Johnsons]. The others injured are Faulkner and his wife, Alice, 25, who were leaving for a vacation in the Black Hills, and Strutz and his wife, Clara. The injured were taken to the Oak Park and Berwyn hospitals.

Sergt. Charles Rudderham of the Berwyn police said that the intersection is protected by traffic signals.

Allen Maltman, 28, son of James Maltman, president of the Aetna State bank, was killed when his car plunged from the highway between Bailey's Harbor and Fish Creek, Wis. The Maltmans home is at 835 Castlewood terrace.

Hit by Automobile; Dies.

Andrew J. Gunderson, 73, died in American hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by an automobile near his home at 830 Waveland avenue. The driver was Stanley H. Minat, of Tinley Park.

Edward Zednik, 27, of 2002 South Desplaines street, was pursued by other motorists and held until police arrived after his car had injured a man and woman at Archer and Ashland avenues. The injured were Mrs. Jennie Klick, 33, of 4610 South Bishop street, and Vincent Chekla, 40, of 1733 38th street.

William Sheffield, 59 years old, of Eastman, Ga., a waiter, was killed by an automobile last night as he walked in Milwaukee avenue half a mile south of River road. The driver, Thomas Seals, of Mundelein, was held by Morton Grove county highway police for the inquest today. David Callahan, 69, of 715 North Clark street, who was with Sheffield, said the latter lived in a rooming house near Clark street and Grand avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 584 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 426 were killed in Chicago, where 15,963 were injured in the same period.

CHURCHGOER'S AUTO LOOTED.

While Clarence Trudeau, 17 West 70th place, was in the St. Columbanus church, 331 East 71st street, yesterday, a thief broke into his parked automobile and took a camera and field glasses valued at $140.

CHARGES HUGHES USES OFFICIAL LITERATURE TO AID HIS CAMPAIGN

Speaking at a 10th ward Republican picnic at Torrence avenue and Ridge road, Justus L. Johnson, nominee for secretary of state, charged yesterday that Secretary Edward J. Hughes is using a vast amount of printed material paid for by the state as an important part of his campaign.

"The state is being flooded with booklets, pamphlets, leaflets, bulletins and brochures, and road maps are being passed out right and left, being shoveled out by Democratic precinct workers and state employes. They all bear the present secretary's name prominently on the cover and elsewhere."

H. M. WRISTON, BROWN U. CHIEF, BACKS WILLKIE

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown university, said in a letter to Wendell L. Willkie, released today, that he would support Willkie's Presidential candidacy because "I feel that American youth will have a better chance under your philosophy of government than under that of the present administration."

"The government cannot live the life of youth, nor can it solve the problem.'" Wriston said. "Its responsibility is to maintain a political environment wherein young people may take their own chances and achieve their own destiny by struggle and discipline—with both joy and sorrow. Not all the burocracy in the world can do more.

"The failure to face this fact is one of the reasons why youth must now be drafted for the national service."

Bandits Rob Two Taxicab Drivers 3 Blocks Apart

Two bandits who posed as patrons held up Alfred Stein of 3149 Leland avenue in his cab yesterday at 19th street and Avers avenue. They took $10 from him and drove away in his cab, which was found later at 4700 Fullerton avenue. Three blocks from there the bandits boarded the cab of William Taff, who lives in Medinah in Du Page county. They later robbed him of $9 and his cab.

THREE NEW IDEAS IN DECORATION

OPEN TODAY AT FIELD'S

YOUNG MODERN HOUSE

—is young America at its best. It shows you how to make furnishing as simple as building with blocks.

Here's a new Modern with a different finish, a light, almost white tone. Young Modern House draperies and upholstered fabrics are wonderful new texture tweeds in exciting new colors. Even wallpapers keep pace . . . the broad vertical stripe in the dining room, the intriguing design in the den that runs the "wrong" way. Here, indeed, in the house of "tomorrow" is Young America at its best.

TREND HOUSE

—presents 19th century classics from the stately mansions of America.

Turn back the pages of American history—100 years or more—and look upon an era of cultural awakening, when first families were making the Grand Tour, when Clipper ships were bringing back cargoes of jade and ivory and silk from the Orient. Visualize this picture, interpret its exuberant elegance in terms of modern day living—and you have Trend House. Furniture copied from the best examples of the Greek Revival mansions of 19th Century America. Fabrics, traditional in design, modern in feeling. And colors that hold no brief with any period—intense yet subtle: lime yellow, moss green, melon. Out of America's past has emerged a new trend in modern decoration.

THRIFT HOUSE

—a typical charming American home that you or I would love to live in . . . and could afford to live in.

It's new, it's exciting. It's a house based on a Plan of a Hundred Ideas. Furnishings you can work into any scheme of your own . . . without going wrong. For all the furnishings in the Thrift House plan were designed to "go together." Naturally, in Thrift House itself you see just one color scheme carried through. There are, altogether, seven various schemes you may choose. All of them charming, livable . . . dramatically new.

Hindsight and Foresight

Progress for Sale

BY HOLGAR J. JOHNSON
President Institute of Life Insurance

JOHNSON

LIFE for the next twenty years will be vastly different. No matter what happens in the political field, we can be sure that new inventions will have a vital effect.

New developments like frequency-modulation radio, stratosphere flying and plastics are already well on their way into our daily lives. The main "bottle neck," however, is getting their benefits before the public and persuading people to accept them.

This is the job of selling, and no country is better equipped to do it than ours, with its tradition of American salesmanship. In the future as in the past, the selling of useful new products will create new jobs and raise the standard of living.

If it weren't for the salesman, most of us might still be reading by candles or traveling by stagecoach . . . many of our factories wouldn't be running and many of us wouldn't have jobs . . . and in life insurance we couldn't have brought security to a fraction of those who have it today.

The people of this country and Canada make up only 7% of the world's population—yet they own nearly 70% of the world's life insurance!

* * *

YOUNG people are growing up in a world which, with its new conveniences and new luxuries, will tempt them to "let tomorrow take care of itself." In this new world there is as great a need for someone to sell foresight as there is for someone to sell the newest radio set. Otherwise our progress may enrich the present only to impoverish the future.

Competing with a hundred transient influences, the life insurance agent must offer a sound and proven means for acquiring security . . . individual and family security that must be won by thrift, planned with wisdom and maintained with patience . . . the only kind of security that is worth anything.

It is this that makes his job important to all of us.

This regular Monday column is provided by the Institute of Life Insurance to permit its President to speak to America's policy owners. Address inquiries to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

MAN ON THE BUS SPEAKS HIS MIND ABOUT ELECTION

Willkie Inspires Him with a New Hope.

think about today's problems? What inheritance of this tradition does he carry in his heart?

"I don't know what to think," he says. "I am undecided politically. I am a Democrat, but I might vote for Willkie. I am almost persuaded. We need a change, but at that I think this third term talk has been too much emphasized.

"The great issue is what to do about stopping Hitler's revolution, which has hit our trade and will change our standard of living if we do not do the right thing. We should get into this war as a measure of self-defense. I will wait to see how Willkie develops and what develops in Europe. Perhaps we should have a change, a new crowd. Government spending is terribly wasteful."

The Old Tyranny Returns.

Here is a young Congregational minister from a nearby town. He, if any one, should have the authentic Puritan tradition clarified. Many of the people here, he says, are Portuguese and Italians and Finns. They run fruit stands and little farms and work the cranberry bogs, now ripening for the Thanksgiving harvest.

"What we have inherited," he says, "at this moment leads us to look across the waters again toward an evil that must be defeated, an evil which must inevitably defeat itself. I mean the old tyranny of the state over the individual. We do not see that evil here as yet. There are some disquieting signs.

"The political feelings of people are guided still by jobs and business conditions. They do not feel that fundamental rights are in danger. These rights, which they will fight to preserve, are that human personality is in its deepest essence inviolably free, that every man is endowed with certain basic rights founded in the very nature of things, and that there is a code of justice, of wrong doing and right doing, not subject to statuatory change. I am hoping that Willkie will prove to be the leader that we need at this time, but I am not certain yet."

See "Too Much Government."

A young printer, descendant of 10 generations of Puritan families, says: "We still have pure democracy here, but it is only found in our town meetings. This town of Plymouth went slightly in favor of Roosevelt four years ago, but I think it is Republican this year. It is the old inheritance coming back. They have always been that way and could only change under pressure. The old religion is dead in form, but its energy lives on in ways hard to define. I am a Democrat and see no reason to change now. There is too much central government power, it is true, but it is not from this side of the water. It is no time to change now."

Business Men for Willkie.

The next man interviewed is a dry cleaner in a small town, a former jockey, the grandson of Welsh pioneers.

"I think Willkie is the man," he says. "The average business man, like myself, is strong for him. People are tired of politicians and he is just the man they have been waiting for. And we are in a majority. Don't think for a minute we are going to let the reliefers and down and outs run this country. We want to help them, as we want to help England. But we are going to look out for our own business and family security and our own country first.

"My grandfather and grandmother came here in the steerage. He was a miner and a good one and he made good money here. People were willing to work and take big chances then. Today it is different. The place where he worked shut down its mines a few years ago. The workings got too long and it was not profitable to bring the coal out five or six miles. So most of the people, including some of my relatives, I am ashamed to say, had to go on relief.

Turn Down Work Chance.

"Well, the company came along with a proposition to sink a shaft near the best vein and sell stock to raise the money, $50 a share, payable on time out of wages. This would put the men back to work. But no, they wouldn't do it. They had rather stay on relief."

RELIGIOUS PAPER RAPS WALLACE'S CHANGE OF TONE

Brands His Acceptance Talk 'Cheap Stuff.'

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A prediction that Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, will soon rue his Des Moines, Ia., acceptance speech is made in the leading editorial in the current issue of the Christian Century, a leading Protestant journal of religion.

The prediction is based on what the editorial cites as the difference between Henry Wallace of old, known by Washington officials as "the goodest man in official Washington," and Henry Wallace, political candidate, who it says is "not too scrupulous as to means when it comes to gaining party ends."

Religious Talks Recalled.

Wallace spoke several times as secretary of agriculture before religious gatherings in Chicago. In the University Church of the Disciples, 5655 University avenue, several years ago, Wallace told of his religious pilgrimage in which he became a convert to the Anglo-Catholic party of the Episcopal church. Prior to his appointment to President Roosevelt's cabinet he had served regularly as an acolyte in a Des Moines church. Other University of Chicago speeches emphasized "disciplines" in agriculture and industry which he described as springing from his religious thought and historical reading.

The editorial in the Christian Century expresses admiration for "the old Henry Wallace," but spoke of the Des Moines speech in terms of a nose dive from high ideals to gain votes. It also predicts that he, like the prodigal son of the Bible story, will come to himself some day and repent.

"We predict," says the editorial, "that the time will come when Henry Wallace will look back with bitter regret on the speech. . . . For Henry Wallace is too good a man to make that kind of speech. He is too big a man to come down to that kind of politics.

Terms Speech Small Spirited.

"His speech was a ranting speech, a partisan speech, a small spirited speech. It was the sort of thing to be expected from a small-time politician trying to warm up a party barbecue crowd. It tried to tag all opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's reelection as Hitlerite opposition, and it dared to predict that a Republican victory would be followed by an American deal with Hitler.

"That is pretty cheap stuff, and Henry Wallace knows it. The old Henry Wallace would never have done it. But Henry Wallace, candidate for office, is evidently not the old Henry Wallace. He is just another politician. Perhaps after the campaign is over he will have a chance, 'like a certain biblical character, to 'come to himself.'"

HOW TO GET A $100 LOAN WITHOUT ENDORSERS

You can borrow $100 on your own signature if you can pay back $6.43 a month—See table for other loan plans—No credit questions asked of friends or relatives—Quick, private service.

YOU can get a personal loan—without red tape or delay—if you can repay in small monthly installments. All you do to apply for a loan at Household is to acquaint us with your problem. You need no bankable security—no endorsers or guarantors.

You may repay your loan on any of the schedules shown in the table below. Thus you may choose the payment plan which best fits your own needs and income.

Payments to fit your purse

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will see, for instance, that monthly installments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

You will note that the sooner you repay the less your loan costs. Four monthly installments of $26.60 each, or a total of only $106.40, will repay a $100 loan in full. Installments shown in the table repay everything.

You will pay less if you pay your loan ahead of time since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. THE CAMPAIGN
Both Sides of it

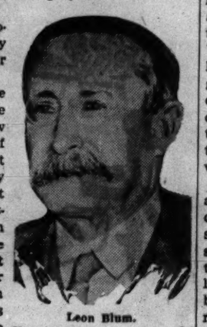
REPUBLICAN.

Blum and Roosevelt.

(Provided by the National Committee of Democrats-for-Willkie.)

In 1937, Leon Blum, premier of France, made a speech to a convention of government employés in which he said:

"France's military equipment is more extensive today than the country has ever known before."



Leon Blum. He said France was prepared.

Blum was head of the "Popular Front," otherwise known as the French New Deal. The outstanding belief of the Popular Front was that France could spend her way back to prosperity. Blum spent the money, all right, but prosperity failed to appear. Then he found himself facing the need of a vast rearmament program to meet the Hitler menace, but without the cash or credit to pay for it. He was on the spot. He made some speeches about the fine condition of the French defenses, like the sample quoted above, tried unsuccessfully to raise money, and eventually went out of circulation.

France has since gone out of circulation, too.

Lessons for America.

France's bad luck under the policy of spending lavishly but failing to arm adequately seems to us to hold a few lessons for America.

Our resources are many times greater, but we have been operating along the same lines. We can still pay the bill for preparedness, but despite reassuring utterances from Washington, D. C., we are woefully unprepared and we are going to remain so unless the present setup there is drastically revamped.

Let's admit that Mr. Roosevelt has done a good job in building up the navy, in the face of some opposition in congress. The navy is his baby. He loves it like a father. He likes to ride in battleships, watch the fleet maneuver, discuss strategy with admirals. It's lucky for us that in this important branch of defense, the national interest also happened to be a Presidential hobby.

But how about the air force, and the regular army, and the National Guard, and the future draft army?

Have we got the planes for them? Have we got the tanks? Have we got the antiaircraft batteries, and the antitank guns, and the automatic rifles, and the thousand and one other weapons and gadgets needed in war today? Are we going to get them soon, and if so, how soon?

Armament Figures Quoted.

Pictures of our "armed" forces in the first army maneuvers last month answer these questions in part. Further answers are to be found in the following front page dispatch from Washington last week to the New York Times:

"The United States army has fewer than 300 first line combat planes, of which only 59 are heavy bombers. Fewer than 1,500 more modern fighting planes have so far been ordered for delivery in 1940 and 1941, of which only 176 are heavy bombers. Orders placed by the war department since May 1, including tanks, semiautomatic rifles, antiaircraft guns, antitank guns, and modern heavy artillery totals only $75,000,000.

"The army has 53,132 semiautomatic rifles and 70,700 on order. It has only one modern 90 mm. antiaircraft gun, with 78 additional on order, and 389 to be bought in the near future. The figures indicate that the army possesses only 250 antitank guns, that it has ordered 500 more, and that it plans to order 500 in the near future."

These disturbing statistics are as of last week. There is an imposing plan for 18,000 army and navy planes [part of which will be for combat] to be ordered or purchased sometime. But if we had to go to war next month, or even next year—well, figure it out for yourself.

"Administration Has Flopped."

So it seems to us that, up to now, the administration has flopped on defense, after a full year of lessons written in the blood of Poland and Belgium and Holland and France.

And since war nowadays is mostly a matter of industry, we doubt if we'll have real preparedness as long as Knudsen and Stettinius and the other industrial experts now trying to speed up the manufacture of munitions are hampered by the little group of ambitious men around the President.

These ambitious men, who are demanding a third term for Mr. Roosevelt and incidentally for themselves, have never been able to team up with industry and they never will. Not that industry has had a lily white record in a lot of cases, but we doubt if an industry run by angels could play ball with this group. They remind us forcibly of the Blum crowd in France, who schemed, theorized, and fiddled away the time in which they could have put their military and industrial machine in shape—but didn't.

That's why we Democrats-for-Willkie, unlike the Democrats-for-Roosevelt branch of our party, want a change in Washington. Mr. Willkie is known to the nation as an able executive who gets along fine with capital and labor. We think he would show results from industry in building up our defense machine rapidly, smoothly, and completely.

We don't think that [outside of the navy] Mr. Roosevelt has shown any particular results on defense, and we don't think he is likely to by the time they will be essential.

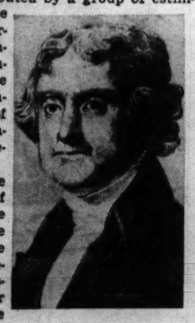
All of which strikes us as another strong reason for refusing him a third term, if any more reasons are needed.

DEMOCRATIC.

A Few Excerpts from Jefferson.

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee.)

An occasional article finds its way into the neighboring Republican column contributed by a group of estimable gentlemen who style themselves "Democrats-for-Willkie." In their own unhappy words, they are refugees, or evacuees, who were compelled to abandon the ancient political faith because of their distaste for the "dictatorship trend" of the Roosevelt administration.



Thomas Jefferson.

The sorry plight of a refugee always awakens a feeling of compassion, and yet for the sake of accuracy, a better title should be coined to embrace this particular band of nameless patriots. "Republicans-before-Willkie" would be far more apt and fitting. Because most of these gentlemen left the Democratic party long before the third term issue was ever heard of. Back in 1936, they contributed wads of money and very few votes to the Kansas giant, Alf Landon, who was the current favorite to meet and whip "the champ," as Mr. Willkie so tastefully calls the President.

Of course, the mere fact that these good folks are able to bolt the Roosevelt ticket without fear of reprisal or personal harm is proof in itself that the dictatorship argument is so much bunk. Dictators have a series of quick and ready remedies for dissenters—the club, the gun, and the concentration camp. A few twists of the radio knob should reassure any timid soul who fears such harsh methods over here. The get rid of Roosevelt chorus, booming over the air waves, is in heartier voice than it ever was.

We Claim Jefferson.

The so-called Willkie Democrats have the right, as citizens in a democracy, to adopt the tenets of the Republican party, but we dispute their right to take Thomas Jefferson in tow and drag him along with them. The long leap from Jefferson to Willkie is too great. The Sage of Monticello would never feel at home in the party of Herbert Hoover and Ham Fish, Joe Pew and Ernie Weir, the Liberty league and the Utilities magnates, and the odd assortment of die hards and reactionaries who comprise the present heirs of Alexander Hamilton.

The glory of Thomas Jefferson lies in his never ending fight to protect and safeguard the social and political interests of common men and women. He was denounced in his day, as Roosevelt is denounced now, because he dared to stand against the power of concentrated wealth and the selfish purpose of those who wanted to convert the young republic into a plutocracy.

Those who appropriate the Jeffersonian mantle for the Willkie cause are selective Jeffersonians. They employ a few of his opinions and conveniently ignore the rest. They say the founder of the Democratic party opposed a third term. He did, at one time. He also opposed a second term, or a third term, or a fourth term for members of the senate and house of representatives. He said one term was enough, after which the incumbent should retire. The majority of senators and representatives are veterans of many terms, including Charles L. McNary, the Republican Vice Presidential nominee.

Jefferson said there was one condition which might cause him to change his mind about a third term—"a circumstance which could engage my acquiescence in another election, to wit: Such a division about a successor as might bring in a monarchist." When Jefferson said a "monarchist" he had in mind the followers of Mr. Hamilton, who never surrendered their secret desire to set up a ruling house.

The "Radical."

Jefferson was a "radical" whose opinions would shiver the timbers of complacent Republicans.

"I hold it that a little rebellion now and then is a good thing, as necessary in the political world, as storms in the physical."

Jefferson had a few words to say about the arrogance of corporate wealth.

"I hope we shall crush in its birth the aristocracy of our money corporations, which dare already to challenge our government to a trial of strength and bid defiance to the laws of our country."

The name of Jefferson was invoked to condemn President Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the membership of the Supreme court. Here is what he said about the judiciary:

"The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working underground to undermine the foundation of our conferated fabric."

Jefferson said his proclamation after the attack on the warship Chesapeake was his only act ever approved by his opponents.

"And when I found they approved of it, I confess I began strongly to apprehend I had been wrong, and to exclaim with the psalmist, 'Lord, what, what have I done that the wicked should praise me.'"

No individual should assume to say what Jefferson would do if he were alive today. But if he or any other man voiced today the opinions which he voiced in his lifetime, he would be scrambling for his life—with the Willkie Democrats hot on his heels.

GREEN LAUNCHES TALKS ON STATE WASTE TONIGHT

Plans 40 Speeches Based on Survey Findings.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Dwight H. Green, Republican nominee for governor, will begin with a radio talk tonight a series of more than 40 campaign speeches in which he will analyze, one after another, each of the departments and divisions of the Illinois state government as they have been administered under Democratic rule during the last seven and one-half years.

The announcement on this subject by his headquarters yesterday said that the candidate's analysis of receipts and expenditures, of service and efficiency, will be based on the results of a two year survey now rapidly being brought to a conclusion by a staff of experts working in Chicago under Green's supervision.

Official Records Studied.

A part of this staff, it was said, spent several months in Springfield scrutinizing and copying records there, while other investigators worked in the field.

Green will make his introductory talk at 8 p. m. over station WENR and will speak every other Monday night until the election on Nov. 5. In addition, he will deliver an average of four speeches each week devoted to this subject thruout the remaining eight weeks of the campaign.

Waste Reported Uncovered.

According to the announcement, Green said, after looking over a digest of the reports on various special topics, that tremendous waste, duplication of work, padded pay rolls, and excessive costs in contracts and purchases have been uncovered.

"We literally have taken the taxpayer's dollar, split it into the pieces provided by statute and budget, and followed those pieces in their progress thru the state house," said Green. "Cold, hard figures and indisputable facts show that a considerable portion of every dollar has been wasted."

200 ATTEND FIRST CLASS IN BATTLE ON VOTE FRAUDS

School began yesterday for 200 of more than 2,000 citizens who have joined the Illinois Volunteer Committee to Stop Vote Frauds. The first class was conducted in the Hotel Sherman by George F. Barrett, Republican candidate for attorney general, who has taken the lead in the campaign against ballot thievery.

Barrett used a blackboard, charts, and enlarged photographs showing the hands of vote thieves at work to illustrate the first lesson.

From now until election day, Nov. 5, classes will be held Sunday afternoons, Wednesday evenings, and Saturday afternoons. The volunteers will be divided into three groups with specific duties — preelection canvassing of registration lists, watching inside polling places, and watching outside to guard against chain voting and other violations.

Barrett left late yesterday for Washington, D. C., where he will confer today with members of the Republican election committee of the house of representatives. From Washington he will go to New York City and Jersey City, N. J., to help Republican organizations fight vote frauds.

AMERICA FIRST OR SECOND?

With Mr. Willkie at Rushville preparing campaign speeches and Mr. Roosevelt at Hyde Park entertaining royalties, with congress going round and round like the music, the vital question of getting into the European war is being threshed out between the America First committee and the America Second committee. The America Second committee, led by New York society women and Roosevelt cabinet officers, is spending a huge secret slush fund, writing catty letters and attacking the America First committee in the Roosevelt press. The America First committee, led by world war heroes, is in the open fighting to keep the future drafted men from being sent to fight and die in a European quarrel. Mr. Roosevelt, who served in the last war in a Washington swivel chair, is the candidate of the America Second committee. Mr. Willkie, who fought at the front, belongs with his fellow soldiers of the America First committee.

MEN WITHOUT WEAPONS.

The inquest into the death of France finds many causes on the surface and some that can even now be followed to their roots. There was the sabotage of industry and of the production of war material beginning with the Blum Popular Front government. The French army went into the field without sufficient or proper equipment. It went with an uncertain morale in the beginning because of the multiparty dissensions. Its generals wanted to fight the last war over. They wouldn't listen and they wouldn't learn.

Andre Maurois in his articles in Collier's has related what he saw as an official observer with both the French and British armies. In front of Lille in October there were little concrete casements, each supposed to contain an antitank gun. The guns weren't there. In the first contact with the Germans the French soldiers found that the enemy was better armed. "Our patrols along the Saar begged their officers to give them submachine guns such as were carried by all the German patrols."

The communist influence was still being felt. "Communist workmen," Maurois says, "without showing open opposition, worked languidly and with no enthusiasm. An almost complete suppression of profits discouraged the small employer." Here we should take note. "Skilled workmen, who were indispensable for the manufacture of airplanes and cannon, were sent to provincial barracks, where they swept out courtyards or peeled potatoes." We should mark that passage.

Hore-Belisha, then British minister of war, said to Maurois: "Conscription is all well and good but for the moment it is more a formula than a reality. I cannot call up all the men who have registered because I have neither equipment nor officers to train them. We have neither equipment nor officers."

"What about officers from the last war?"

"They do not understand the new weapons." [They fired Hore-Belisha and not the generals.]

It is recalled that Hitler said: "I shall disintegrate their war." Gamelin, the French commander, had said that he did not intend to start this war with another Verdun. He didn't and, altho it sacrificed the Poles, it was nevertheless thought at the time to be wise. The French didn't break their heads against the Siegfried line. Gamelin also said that the first man who came out of his shell would be crushed. That wasn't true. The Germans came out at Sedan and settled the fate of France in about three weeks because they had the weapons and the French didn't have them.

Hitler disintegrated the French war by allowing the French conscripts to spend an inactive winter in the lines. The sense of physical security that inaction gave them wore off in the boredom of the war which wasn't a war but which kept them from their families, from their occupations, in a service which impressed them more and more with its pointlessness. Here again is a point for our consideration.

If we call up 400,000 conscripts in the first draft and 400,000 more in the second, what will be the effect upon the morale of these men? What will they think when they find that they have been taken from civil life, from their homes and their normal pursuits, to be herded together for reasons which will become less and less apparent. Suppose they are, as now seems probable, if not inevitable, for a long time without arms, without suitable housing, without experienced officers, and even without uniforms.

Suppose they spend the winter in discomforts for which they find no explanation, tramping around in the mud and clearly perceiving that there was no justification for the service imposed on them. They are going to contrast their situation with that of the young men who have remained in the better organized and more comfortable CCC camps, with much greater liberty, and with the able bodied men who are on relief and who have escaped the draft. They'll probably get into much the same state of mind to which the French conscripts were reduced by their eight months of disintegrating experience.

The conscription of men at this time has only one reason, and that reason goes back to the communist Popular Front of Premier Blum which opened the road of ruin to France. The ulterior purpose behind the conscription of men is the conscription of industry. The two plans are closely knit together. They are written into the same bills. The conscription of men is intended to lead to the clamor for the conscription of property. The proponents feel sure of the public response. If the government takes a man, why can it not take a dollar?

The promoters of the communist scheme already feel certain that if they draft men they'd have great popular support for the expropriation of industries. If they draft the men, they can seize the plants and that is what the war is all about. The war is the trump card with which the New Deal collectivists hope to take the deciding trick.

MATT TAYLOR'S STORY.

In obtaining what proved to be the deathbed statement of Mathew Taylor, describing the manner in which the gangster syndicate of Frank Nitti, the late Mike Carrozzo, and George Scalise extorted thousands of dollars from the elevator operators' union, State's Attorney Courtney has found a weapon which should be of great value in ridding Chicago of these criminals.

The charges made by Taylor have been met with denials by some of the men he named, which is only to be expected. While those who knew him knew him as a truthful man, his story need not be judged on his word alone. If the accounts of his union show the diversions of funds which he said he made to purchase a few more months of life from the gangsters who were threatening him, his principal charge will stand as proved. If he was telling the truth in that instance, there will be a strong presumption that his other charges were true—a presumption so strong, in fact, that it cannot be met by simple denials.

There is another known fact, namely, that the elevator operators' union was taken away from the international union of elevator constructors and turned over to the international union of building service employés, which recent developments have shown to be rotten and thoroly dominated by gangsters. Taylor charged that this was done under pressure from President William Green and the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Green has denied the part in the transaction imputed to him by Taylor. Mr. Green bears the reputation of an honest man, altho some of his other transactions with the gangster Scalise, who was the beneficiary of the transfer, show him to have been a very gullible man also. The public, as well as the labor movement, has a right to a full and correct account of this transaction.

Here is a picture of a rich dues collecting territory being bartered and tossed about between two groups of labor leaders, one subsequently proved to be made up of gangsters and the tools of gangsters, and the transaction given some form of approval or acquiescence by the governing body of the A. F. of L. This hardly fits in with the other picture, which Mr. Green is so fond of painting, of the A. F. of L. as a great democratic organization.

Mr. Courtney has a chance to root out some of these smelly characters who are preying on working men and send them to jail where they belong. We think he is going to seize that chance, and we believe he will be successful. Mr. Green has a chance to be of great service to the labor movement in assisting Mr. Courtney. As month after month passes without any effective move by him or his associates in the executive council, our doubts increase that he will accept it.

OLD STUFF AT VICHY.

The Petain government at Vichy has announced that the fortunes of fifteen prominent Frenchmen who fled abroad have been confiscated and their citizenship annulled. Among them are five members of the house of Rothschild, Pierre Cot, and Leon Stern, banker and industrialist. Nazi Germany has done the same thing to some of its fugitive men of wealth, including Fritz Thyssen, who made the mistake of backing Herr Hitler when he and his party needed a war chest.

This is only a new chapter in the old story of conflict between the business man and the robber ruler. The business man, from the time of his emergence on the world scene, has always been three or four levels of civilization above the politician. Even when he went about his profit taking with the ruthlessness of a man of war, he was raising the standard of living and the robber baron was holding it down. He introduced appliances which the ruler didn't have the mentality to invent or the intelligence to use. The merchant lived in a house made comfortable by stoves and furnishings while the baron was in his rocky, frozen castle. The business man brought the community along with him. The robber ruler couldn't match wits with him but he could expropriate him. He could get forced loans from the banker and not repay him. He could descend on the merchant and seize his train of goods. He could take over the business man's estates and rob him of his lands. Then the robber baron learned to tax and thereupon the politician's life became one of ease.

Editorial of the Day

MR. WALLACE CANNOT ADJOURN THE ELECTION.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

According to Henry Wallace the Republicans are comforting Hitler by having an election this year. Hitler, he says, knows that the campaign distracts public attention and he hopes to get rid of the "unyielding Roosevelt."

Mr. Wallace does not imply that the Republicans are doing this willfully and consciously to help Hitler. It is just that they cannot judge so intelligently as Mr. Wallace. He makes it clear that the national duty is to adjourn the campaigning, hold a "Ja" election, and start the third term off with three rousing heils.

This is all very profound, of course, but it happens to be the American way to hold an election this year and invite the candidates to tell us what they propose to do about it. We were told the other day by Harold Ickes that Mr. Roosevelt cannot adjourn the battle of Britain, a fact of which most of us were aware and, so far as we know, nobody asked Mr. Roosevelt to do it. Mr. Wallace now must know that neither he nor Mr. Roosevelt can adjourn the Presidential election of 1940.

It is the American way to have elections and in this one the nation can develop strength, not weakness, by bringing out the issues in open debate.

This is not yet a one-man country, in spite of the efforts of Mr. Roosevelt's spokesmen to make us believe so. The net result is to make us wonder how the country got along until 1933 when Mr. Roosevelt started the national debt on its skyrocket career. There are a number of things the people would like to hear from Candidate Roosevelt in open debate with Candidate Willkie. All they want to hear from Mr. Wallace is how he knows so well what Hitler is thinking.

The military ingenuity of the Germans is unbounded. A Nazi flyer learned how to surrender in midair.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. M. S.

OFF THE MAIN TRAIL.

Since nearly all the world loves a fossil, and dinosaurs are much in fashion, we will tell you about the cemetery of the biggest in the world. It's a few miles off the highway [U. S. 40] in the northeastern corner of Utah, and most tourists zip past that crossing without giving it a tumble. The unpaved road looks risky; the hills are hot, barren, and uninviting. But there you will find the Dinosaur National Monument and gain some insight into practical palaeontology, a science which has, for some men, the lure of gold digging.

Dinosaur mining was in progress there for years, and the Carnegie institution had prior rights. Complete fossil skeletons of several of the world's largest came out of this relatively small area. The federal government acquired title, and after leasing digging privileges to various geological expeditions decided to make it a national open air museum. The undiscovered dinosaurs may now rest in peace.

The present buildings are temporary: an informal museum, a few workshops for handling specimens; and quarters for the small staff of caretakers. A geologist guide is at hand to escort visitors along a short, tricky trail and discuss the whole subject of palaeontology.

The walk leads along a ridge of rock which appears to be matted with fossil bones of assorted sizes. This will be the show piece of the future museum [appropriation not yet voted]. The rock will be chipped away until the bones are revealed in their complex patterns in situ. A house will be built around and over the ridge to protect the exhibit from erosion. Thus the visitors may gaze upon a mighty scramble of dinosaur bones as nature arranged them for eternal peace.

At one point on the trail the guide tells an odd tale. One of the expeditions contained a small boy, son or brother of some professor. He got into the savants' hair while they were working, so to keep him quiet they asked him to bore a blasting hole behind a small clump of rock. When he had finished he clamored for the finishing touch—the explosion; and they humored him.

The fragment that was dislodged contained the world's smallest dinosaur, about nine inches long. Microscopic examination proved that it was not a midget or an infant, but a perfect adult. It's the only one in the world, and establishes a new species.

Question: Did they name the species after the small pestiferous boy? Of course not.

TO A YOUNG OPERA SINGER.

Sing true, sing long, O bird with swelling throat!
Sing long, and help mankind forget its grief;
Sing true, that it may find a sweet relief
In melody with no discordant note.

Men fight and die in other worlds than this:
Here beauty enters sole, and innocence
But plays at sin, and even hate intense
Finds utterance that lifts the heart to bliss.

Sing long, sing sweet, young bird with eager heart!
Sing, while beyond these walls a world in quake
Shudders on some dark brink, yet for your sake
Would save itself, to wait for your perfected art.

Maneuvers at Sparta.

Thru early morning mist they swept along highways converging on the little town, which was only a milestone in the movement north. They passed thru so swiftly and silently that were it not for a trail of dust in their wake you might have doubted they had been there at all.

This, then, was the new army hurrying to summer camp. No plodding foot soldiers here. No horses. Just fleets of brown trucks in which sun tanned soldiers rode. Guns, streamlined, grim as the men and the business which lay ahead. Ambulances, signal corps, all the rest of it, dressed up in machine age clothing.

There was something deadly and dynamic about it. It seemed to take the breath out of you and leave you there, groping, wondering. The spirit of our pioneer forefathers, of America, hovered over that purposeful brown reptile. It had initiative, cleverness, hidden power. And like a pugilist with similar qualities, you knew that should an emergency arise this fighter, too, would be tough and resourceful in battle.

Enlightenment and intelligence at the top to guide it. Within the ranks, independence nicely tempering discipline.

And ahead, the flag of a free people!

A Philosopher Meets Disappointment.

Among other things, a brief stay in a hospital cures one of conceit and egotism. After a matter-of-fact nurse has taken your wallet, trousers, glasses, and store teeth, and left in exchange only a scanty bib and knee length socks [in lieu of pajamas], your personality rating approximates zero. Nurse-patient romances are, I fear, only found in the movies! Quizzicuss.

LUCKLESS LOVE SONGS.

I make you many love songs,
Hoping some song may hold
All that the heart would speak of;
But still love goes untold.

O innocent, luckless venture!
As if a bee should strive
To pack a garden's nectar
Into one small hive.

Wine vs. Beer in Literature.

The noble wine has always been a patrician drink, immortalized in proverb, song, and story since earliest history. Beer is a plebeian refreshment, and tho it has not fared badly in song, I know only of one instance in literature where it is an integral part of a story. That is in "Walter, a Bock," by Guy de Maupassant. Maxellus.

ERYSIPELAS RESPONDS TO SULFANILAMIDE.

WHILE erysipelas is less common than it was a generation ago, nevertheless we encounter the malady often enough. When it appears we realize that we are facing a dangerous infection of the skin—one that may tax severely the resistance of the patient. The very young and the old are attacked more frequently. Perhaps this may be explained on the ground that the fighting forces of the body are not well developed in infants; while they have been worn out or depleted in those who are advanced in years.

Recently the use of sulfanilamide has been evaluated quite accurately and—when compared with treatment by serum, X-rays, or ultraviolet light—the results are striking. It was observed that the creeping character of the eruption was better controled and, in many instances, the duration of the disorder was reduced. There is every reason to believe that this compound is more effective than antitoxin—when all factors are considered.

A report of nearly 200 cases—one-third treated with antitoxin and two-thirds with sulfanilamide — proved that the chemical plan was superior. In these subjects the fever was abated far more promptly. Within two or three days, as a rule, the temperature dropped to normal. This is quite in contrast with the employment of other known procedures, where the fluctuating fever curve usually persists from six to seven days. Next, the hospital stay was cut exactly in half—to an average minimum of seven and one-half days.

Most hopeful of all was the fact that within 24 hours the symptoms seemed to yield to the remedy. The patients were less toxic. The extension of the red line of "fire"—with bleb formation—and the blazing appearance of the skin were markedly diminished. Again, there were fewer ear infections and kidney involvements.

The drug was particularly helpful with babies, as the little ones apparently withstood its side-effects very well. Altho many of them were weak, with clear cut evidences of malnutrition, they presented fewer complications such as were found in the group falling within the sixth and seventh decades of life.

We do not know, of course, how much the existence of kidney disease, diabetes, or an inefficient heart may influence a bout with erysipelas. We can assume, however, that any one suffering from an organic disturbance will be far less able to throw off with ease so serious an ailment. Furthermore, elderly individuals cannot take large doses if elimination via the renal organs is interfered with.

The question naturally comes—how much can be given? The routine dose is one-half grain per pound of body weight within 24 hours. Sometimes slightly larger quantities are administered but, on the whole, the amount is smaller than that recommended in either blood poisoning or meningitis.

In order to guard against injury to the blood forming structures, a careful cell count is taken every other day. In this fashion damage can be detected early and the medicine reduced or its administration stopped for a time.

We must admit that the "sick" feeling which ensues subsequent to taking the drug must be endured. Halting the ravages of the "strep" germs is far more important than temporary comfort. Needless to say, no one should use sulfanilamide on his own responsibility. It is too powerful a remedy to be taken carelessly.

LIME FOR TEETH.

J. H. writes: I have been told that a few drops of lime placed in the drinking water will help to keep the teeth strong. Is this possible?

REPLY.

I assume you refer to lime water, which is a weak solution of hydroxide of calcium. There is more of this element in a pint of milk than one would obtain from the daily use of the mixture you mention. If the diet is deficient in lime and phosphorus, the teeth may suffer. We all need both substances—as well as vitamin D.

RUPTURED APPENDIX.

L. K. writes: Is it possible to have a ruptured appendix without knowing it?

REPLY.

One would have to be extremely insensible to pain. Curiously enough, the early signs of appendicitis—pain and nausea—may give way to a feeling of comfort as soon as the appendix bursts. Within a few hours, however, more severe symptoms come on.

CHIPPED TOOTH.

S. writes: When a front tooth is chipped, will the piece grow back?

REPLY.

No more than we can grow a new finger to replace one that has been amputated. A skilled dentist is needed.

T. R.'S FOREIGN POLICY.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 6.—I was greatly interested in a recent letter from "J. C. F." in your column telling just what Gen. Sherman said by way of preface to his famous remark, "War is hell."

I was reminded by it of another equally famous remark made by Theodore Roosevelt, "Speak softly but carry a big stick," which is constantly being quoted. I don't recall anywhere in contemporaneous print the full text of this, one of the greatest pronouncements ever made by any President of the United States.

While on his western tour in 1903, Teddy Roosevelt visited Milwaukee. On the evening of April 4, speaking before an audience at Waukesha and having in mind the recent slurring remarks made by Admiral George Dewey with reference to Germany, he said, among other things:

"I would like to impress upon every public man, upon every writer in the press, the fact that strength should go hand in hand with courtesy, with scrupulous regard in word and deed not only for the rights but the feelings of other nations. I am always sorry when I see any reflections which seem to come from America upon a friendly nation; and the saying of anything unkind, unjust, or inconsiderate about any foreign nation does not do us any good.

"It is not at all necessary to say disagreeable things about the strong nor to impress them with the fact that you do not intend to submit to an injury. Keep your navy up to a high state of efficiency. Keep in our hearts the rugged, manly virtues which have made our people formidable. Do all that, and having done it, remember that it is the sensible thing to speak courteously of others. . . .

"The stronger, the more self-confident a nation is, the more carefully it should guard its speech, as well as its actions, and should make it a point, in the interests of its own self-respect, to see that it does not say what it cannot make good, that it offers no needless offense, that it shows sincerely its desire for friendship with the rest of mankind, and that it keeps itself in shape to make its weight felt if the need should arise. This is in substance my theory of what our foreign policy should be. Let us not boast, not insult any one, but make up our minds coolly what is necessary to say, say it, and then stand on it whatever the consequences may be." BEN HUR.

THE "DOVE SEASON."

St. Gilbert's Rectory, Gray's Lake, Ill., Sept. 2.—Glancing thru today's TRIBUNE I came across an advertisment of one of our leading department stores—"Hunters! Are you all set for the dove season?"

I rubbed my eyes and looked again. Yes, it said "Dove season!"

Are we reverting to the habits and instincts of our savage ancestors? Are some people so hard up for food that they must kill one of the loveliest and gentlest of God's songbirds?

The older the world becomes the more cruel it seems to be. Is the Humane society asleep? E. B.

FOR LIGHT ON PLANE CRASH.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—In Washington this week the Civil Aeronautics board is holding public hearings to determine, if possible, the cause of the air liner crash that cost the lives of 25 people.

May I suggest in the interest of determining this cause that the pilot's report of what happened to a P. C. A. plane out of Cleveland for Detroit Nov. 1, 1939, at 7:30 p. m., be injected into the investigation?

This may supply the answer as well as lift any possible blame from the air lines. I was a passenger on that trip.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 9, 1513

Scots decisively defeated by the English at Flodden field in Northumberland. Among the 10,000 Scottish dead were all the leading men of the realm, including King James IV. James had led a vast army across the border two weeks before, but his force was weakened thru privation and desertion. James and a few of his noblemen were the last of the Scots to go down, fighting to the end in a circle of spearmen.

WIFE OF A CONVICT WRITES.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—In THE TRIBUNE Lieut. Gen. Ford said that no ex-convict or criminal need apply for army service.

Just what is a criminal? And what is a soldier? Gen. Ford says the army wants men who can be relied on in time of stress to display courage and loyalty. I think the general should study this "criminal" business carefully before he says such a thing. Make a check on the prisons. You'll find there many a fine young man, walking straight, thinking straight, and willing to go straight if given the much needed opportunity. Don't push a man down further who has fallen once.

I'll say one-third of our prisoners are young men who went into crime because of unemployment conditions. They've made their mistake and have or are paying now. WIFE OF A CONVICT.

ABOUT A BOY NOT ROBUST.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—To "Just Plain Bill Smith" who wrote against exemptions from active war service: We know you are rugged and strong; an honest-to-God true American. Be thankful for that. But I know another young lad, too. He's not like you. He is not good at athletics. He'd admire you greatly, I'm sure.

But he has a smaller frame for his young body. He's well but he's not robust. He's not good at the same things that you are. But he has his abilities. He is only 15 but he's an accomplished musician. He, too, is an "honest-to-God American." War would be harder for him than for you, but he is not less to be admired and not less useful if placed right. BLESS U. BOTH.

A HIGHER CURB WOULD HELP.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—A few days ago a man was drowned while backing his car into a parking space near Wacker drive at the edge of the Chicago river. The curb was only six and a half inches high and hundreds of cars are parked there. Would it not be wise to make this curb at least a yard high?

Last year the city collected in vehicle taxes alone over $12,000,000. Where does this money go? None of it was spent for a safe curb at the Chicago river, and, judging by the filthy condition of many of our streets and alleys, only a small part of this huge sum was spent for cleanliness. LESLIE L. GLENN.

WHERE THE DEBT MEANS VOTES.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 6.—I doubt if Franklin D. Roosevelt could be elected a councilman at large in any city in the United States except those large machine controlled cities. Why? Because the folks would know he was spending their money. And if he were lucky enough to be elected and told them, "Your city's debt is really not a debt at all because we owe it to ourselves," he would not stand the chance of a snowball in hell for even a second term.

Strange, isn't it, how some men are sent to Washington who do not have the business judgment of a Moon Mullins?

RALPH FISHER.

LIQUOR ON CREDIT.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—I wonder if other wives wonder about the state law prohibiting the sale of alcoholic drink on credit.

My husband pays his liquor bill by the week and while he isn't a drunkard he spends more than if he paid for each bottle, because he wouldn't have ready cash and would have to do without.

I wish I had another chance to vote for prohibition. A. M.

REPLIES TO WELLS' TAUNT.

Gulfport, Miss., Sept. 4.—Mr. H. G. Wells tells us his pending lecture tour in the United States has taught him that [in respect of the war in Europe] "Americans expect every Englishman to do his duty." Well, why not? Who declared this war, and what citizen of England, in existing circumstances, has any choice but to meet the enemy inflexibly? One further word concerning Mr. Wells' characteristic taunt: when America declares war, England being wholly innocent of either provoking it or having any chance or power to prevent it, I hope every American will do his duty and leave England free to keep the peace which is legitimately hers. I hope no American lecturer will be found in England then camouflaged as a light-spreader but really an agent of his government seeking to draw a European empire into an American war. EDWARD PRICE BELL.

FOR A GLORIFIED HAIR DRESSER.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—An item in your paper the other day regarding a glorified hair dresser of New York City has made me realize the error under which most of us United States citizens are laboring. If we have the money and the inclination we women should not worry about the refugee children nor any other strenuous problem. Let us all study our hairline and an artistic coiffure. I, for one, feel that I should employ a most expert hair dresser, as my locks are not raven, but nondescript, and perhaps he could evolve a coiffure termed the "hat" wing that would best suit my type of "belfry."

So, avaunt, needy refugees! And on with the hair stylist!

LYDIA O' THE LEES.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died two years ago. There are four children, or rather there were four, as one died one month later, leaving three. My father left no will.

1. My sister collected his insurance and kept the money he had on hand. My father had two cemetery lots; one lot is in use and there is one vacant. My sister's daughter is holding the deed to that lot.

2. I was told by some one that there is a rule that the oldest living daughter can claim that cemetery lot.

3. Is that true?

4. Is there anything to do about it? My parents are both dead, my mother having passed away 10 years ago and my father two years ago.

5. Who is entitled to that lot? My brothers don't care for it but my niece wants it. M. B.

1. It is not clear whether you mean the one who later died.
2. There is no such rule of law.
3. No.
4. Technically any one of the parties is entitled to force a sale and distribution of the proceeds made.
5. A sale would seem appropriate if the parties cannot agree.

HUNT EX-MATE IN SHOOTING OF BRIDE AND SON

Assassin Fires Rifle Blast Thru Window.

Authorities in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, seeking information that would throw light on the mysterious shooting of a young mother yesterday, were searching last night for her former husband.

Alton Halverson.

The victim was Mrs. Ellen Herrin, 25 years old, who remarried two months ago. She was wounded critically by a gunman who fired thru the bedroom window as she was undressing in her home at 306½ Washington street, Dundee. The town is in Kane county, about 42 miles northwest of Chicago.

Young Son Also Wounded.

As Mrs. Herrin fell, the gunman poked a rifle thru the window and aimed it at her husband, Faytte. Herrin seized the barrel, and the bullet went wild. Another shot, however, seriously wounded Laurold Halverson, 3, Mrs. Herrin's son by the previous marriage.

The man sought for questioning is Alton Halverson, a farmer living near Ostrander, Minn.

Sheriff Marcus W. Damisch of Kane county was informed by Sheriff Ira Syck of Mower county, Minnesota, that Halverson's mother said he left there, bound for Illinois, on Saturday. Mrs. Herrin said she knew of no one but her ex-husband who might have borne her ill will.

She said she divorced Halverson for desertion a year ago, winning custody of Laurold and another son, Charles, 7. Halverson, she said, has been trying to bring about a reconciliation. He learned that she had remarried when she and her husband visited her family near the Halverson farm a week ago. Herrin, who is 44, is an awning worker.

Struck in Back by Bullet.

The Herrins had gone to a dance with relatives Saturday night. They were preparing to retire when they heard a noise at the window. Then a bullet crashed thru the glass, striking Mrs. Herrin in the back. The gunman pushed his weapon thru the hole in the glass to shoot at Herrin, who cut his hand trying to wrest the gun from his assailant.

Mrs. Herrin and her son were taken to the Sherman hospital in Elgin. Last night physicians said the outlook for Mrs. Herrin's recovery was "quite favorable" unless an infection developed. The boy's condition is considered less critical.

REPORT CHICAGO ATTORNEY MAY HEAD U. OF IOWA

V. M. Hancher Under Consideration.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 8 [Special].—Virgil M. Hancher, a Chicago attorney, is being considered for the presidency of the University of Iowa in Iowa City, according to authoritative reports here today. Hancher, it is said, was visited in his home in Evanston, Ill., a few days ago by a delegation from the Iowa state board of education and was offered the post.

Virgil M. Hancher.

There has been no formal notification, however. Final approval of Hancher is supposedly waiting action by George T. Baker, president of the state board of education, who is confined to his home in Davenport by illness, and by Gov. George A. Wilson.

Vacancy Since July 1.

The position has been vacant since July 1, when Eugene A. Gilmore, president since 1934, retired and went to Pittsburgh, Pa., to become dean of the University of Pittsburgh.

Miss Anna B. Lowther of Cedar Rapids, chairman of the facuty committee of the state board of education, said the question of the new president had not yet been settled. Hancher has been under consideration for a "very long time," she added, and a decision may be made soon.

Hancher, reached at his home in Evanston, Ill., said that any announcement of the appointment would have to come from here. He said he thought no official action had yet been taken.

Native of Iowa.

Hancher is associated with the law firm of Pope and Ballard, and was born 44 years ago in Rolfe, Ia. He was graduated from the University of Iowa in 1918, served in the navy, and then won a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford university. He took his law degree at Iowa in 1924, and has practiced in Chicago since. His wife, the former Susan Cannon of Paulina, Ia., attended Ferry hall and Northwestern university. There are three children, Virgil, 9; Mary Susan, 6, and Priscilla, 1.

Among the strong contestants for the post, it is said, is Dean Chester Phillips of the school of commerce at the university. He is said to have strong backing still fighting to win him the appointment.

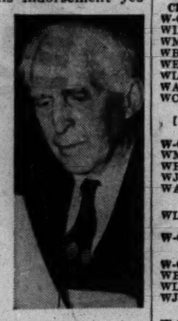
AMERICA FIRST DRIVE HAILED BY CHARLES BEARD

Historian Backs Stand for Peace and Defense.

Charles A. Beard, the celebrated historian, gave his indorsement yesterday to the principles for which the America First committee stands. In a statement from his home, in New Milford, Conn., he assailed the "party of intervention" as leading to war and commended the "party of non-intervention" which he said is represented by the committee and which he asserted stands for the adequate defense and peace of America.



Charles A. Beard.

The America First committee, a nonpartisan organization with the slogan "Defend America First," was organized by a group of liberals, conservatives, Democrats, Republicans, and leaders in industry and business.

Cites "Acts Short of War."

Beard's statement follows in part:

"Attached to the party of intervention are many American citizens who shrink from an open declaration of war by the government of the United States but propose actions 'short of war' which will, in effect, commit us to full war if such actions fail in their objectives.

"On this side are also many American citizens and residents of the United States whose primary concern is with the fate of certain European nationalities rather than that of this country.

"Among the opponents of intervention in the European war are to be found various interested persons who are more concerned with the fortunes of Russia, Italy and Germany than with the welfare of the United States.

"But the party of nonintervention represented by the America First committee includes no 'appeasers,' no 'ostrich isolationists,' no foreigners of any nationality in letter or spirit, and no pacifists.

Aims of Group Described.

"It believes:

"1. That the foreign policy of the United States should be directed to the preservation of the peace and security of this nation in its continental zone of interests.

"2. That using or threatening to use the armed forces of the United States, outside its continental zone of interests, to chase some rainbow of world peace, is dangerous to the security of this country.

"3. That no declamations against other governments, no threats against them, should extend beyond the physical power of the United States to make such declamations or threats good in battle on land or sea.

"4. That the United States should not resort to any more measures verging in the direction of war outside its continental zone of interests."

HANSTEI

Looking at Hollywood
By John Chapman

Diary of a Movie Correspondent.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 8.—Sunday: Let's sit this one out. You can't get a paragraph about working in the morning and paying a family call in the afternoon and stopping off to buy a pint and a half of ice cream for Sunday supper. Ice cream stores here are just like those anywhere else—they're always just fresh out of black walnut.

Monday: It's Labor day and I louse up the whole tradition of journalism by not working. For a swim in the morning and then lunch and a mixed foursome of golf in the afternoon, the ladies being Mrs. Howard Emmett Rogers and Mrs. James Edward Grant, whose husbands are scenario writers. Their old men are working. Being a script writer is tougher than being a newspaper man, but there's more money in it—some weeks.

Tuesday: In the upstairs back room all morning, beating the noiseless portable and wishing the dog next door were either portable or noiseless. Lunch with Columbia's Lou Smith, who relates that F. D. R. was a scenario writer once, and turned in a script on the U. S. S. Constitution when he was assistant secretary of the navy. Lou tells how the movies are now wooing the $12 exhibitor—the little neighborhood theater owner who rents a whole program for a dozen bucks. Nowadays he is getting more attention than ever—"For," says Lou, "he's the foreign market these days." . . . In the evening to a preview of "Hired Wife," which is quite funny.

Wednesday: To RKO to gab and gander, and there I encounter Nick Carter, whose press department job is being a combination news editor and city editor for the unit men on the lot. When I was a cub in Denver, Nick Carter and Lee Taylor Casey were the pride and terror of the managing editor—who was my dad. Both were brilliant, and both were screwballs. Now Casey is managing editor in the same shop, looking with disfavor on the whimsies of his staff, and Carter is even more dignified. . . . To the "They Knew What They Wanted" retake set, to say how do to Carole Lombard and to Garson Kanin, who has been getting in the papers because he took Katharine Hepburn out a couple of times. . . . Miss Lombard has been driving Mr. Gable's small convertible and getting into trouble with cops because the engine has been equipped with oversize exhaust pipes. "They tell me I can't have those things," she says, "and I tell them I don't know anything about machinery, but my old man is a bug on gadgets and they'd better see my old man."

Thursday: To Paramount for a look at the "Love Thy Neighbor" water set, where Fred Allen is being rushed thru scenes so he can get back to New York for a new broadcast series, and then for an interesting hour and a half with Producer Jack Moss, who gained respect in Hollywood as Gary Cooper's manager by saying "No" to almost everything. Now that he's a big boss he hasn't a yes-man on his staff. . . . Gregory La Cava phones, says he is still "moulting" at Malibu Beach, but has begun listening to stories and fears he will soon be making another picture. . . . An evening at home, reading two trade papers, four newspapers, two magazines, and John Buchan's "The Thirty-Nine Steps," still an up to date wartime spy and stuff story—the movie out to be reissued with new ballyhoo.

Friday: To Lakeside to gab with Frank Craven, Henry O'Neill, Richard Macaulay, Frank Willard, and others, and win a dollar from Duke Wellington by betting that drinks in this town are only a half to two-thirds the size of drinks served in New York—and they cost more, too. Californians, I find, are conditioned to paying more for everything, from automobiles to cheap gin. The reason is always "It's the freight"—but the freight doesn't account for all the rise.

Saturday: To Twentieth Century-Fox for a look at the "Tin Pan Alley" and "Chad Hanna" sets. On the former—and it's early morning—Jack Oakie, John Payne, and Alice Faye are doing a dinner scene, with Oakie wolfing great gobs of noodles. There has been take after take, and Jack, who has gone to great lengths to lose forty-odd pounds, is beginning to look bloated. Miss Faye, in a 1912 model hobble skirt, makes one think that after all this much kidded style wasn't so silly. Wait till you see her! "Chad Hanna" is being shot outdoors today on the back lot, with Director Henry King staging two circus parades. Henry Fonda is wondering if there will be some more night work. "King's home life must be awful," he grumbles. "He never wants to go home—but I got a date tonight."

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

Once again we've proved that the best course to take with the nail biter is a series of professional manicures. We have just seen the results of following this advice in a young woman of 25 who had battled for years against the bad habit, without any success.

Admonition doesn't work in children or in adults as a rule. Most people bite their nails because their are bits of torn cuticle annoying them. Biting is responsible for much of the cuticle tearing but further nibbling doesn't relieve the condition.

The nail biter who is ser. us about wanting to overcome the habit should start professional manicures, and, in the beginning of the treatment, have them at frequent intervals. Sometimes it is profitable to have a manicurist work on the nails as often as three times a week.

The nails will profit by the oiling and trimming and their possessor, especially when she has a standing appointment with the manicurist, is more apt to give the nails the right kind of home care. She'll oil them at night and trim them herself if necessary. Then, when she begins to see progress, the battle is half won.

The outlay in money is really very small compared with the returns. Badly bitten nails are a physical and psychological handicap that can and should be overcome.

Good Morning!

The locale: Alaska.

The characters: A brilliant young doctor dedicating himself to a few humble people scattered over many miles of territory; a nurse who comes from Seattle to assist him; a silent, watchful man, revealed late along in the story's action as a United States marshal; assorted natives, and a beautiful and intelligent dog that belongs to the doctor and hates the marshal.

The Story: No nurse has been able to put up with the discomforts of Dr. Holden's station nor with the doctor himself until Anne Webster comes along and SHE starts back for civilization. . . . But she stops really, before she has started, due to trouble in the Broken Thumb family and for another reason she's not at that time even prepared to own to herself.

Dr. Holden is brusque, immensely efficient and adored by the natives. His skill with the knife arouses admiration in the girl, elicits questions from Bill Bogler and wrings an admission from the doctor which results in some pretty stirring drama. There's a chase across Alaskan snows that's blood quickening. You rather sense the outcome—but you like it anyway.

Messrs. Morris and Bickford are well cast and Jane Wyatt is nice after she warms up a bit. The natives are swell. There's one terrifically funny scene—where the Broken Thumbs and Granny Bearfat Tillicoot play one "beeg" joke on the Mister Doctor. I laughed like a fool—and so did the rest of the audience.

See you soon.

Spectators at Dunham Woods Horse Show

Miss Dudley Winston (left), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farwell Winston, and Miss Lana Jelke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke, were among the enthusiasts who watched the Dunham Woods horse show at Wayne yesterday.

Lunch Time Divides Horse Show Enthusiasts Into Two Classes

BY SUZETTE FARMER.

Lunch time yesterday at the ninth annual Dunham Woods horse show at Wayne revealed that horse show enthusiasts can be divided into two classes: the outdoor lovers who put up with heat, glaring sun, and tenacious flies, to picnic on the grass; and the more sensitive individuals who complain not, but who take advantage of a brief intermission to seek haven in the clubhouse.

Henry W. Meers and his friends fell into the first category. He, Lockwood Pirie, Ross J. Beatty Jr., Miss Barbara Hobart, and the Stewart Boals were among those who opened their hampers in a shady spot beneath one of the beautiful trees which border one side of the new ring. Leaning slightly more toward comfort were Mrs. Arthur Orr of Cameron, Mont., who is visiting her son and daughter-in-law, the Montgomery Orrs. They shared an outdoor table with Mrs. Philip B. Hosmer, Miss Barbara Bastien, and young Arthur Orr.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Hecht of Barrington unhesitatingly had their luncheons on the screened veránda of the clubhouse. They had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Rowe and the latters' nephew, Loring Rowe. And some, such as the George Buffingtons, their daughter and son, Miss Ann Buffington and Nick; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cooper Jr. and their daughter, Miss Maxine, sought the dining room.

But wherever the 1,200 guests chose to refresh themselves, the atmosphere was decidedly informal and sartorially, comfort was stressed. Casual sport dresses, shorts, tennis dresses, and sweaters and skirts, predominantly accompanied by bare legs, were the chosen feminine garb.

Comfort, too, dictated the posts of observation, and the numerous parking spaces around the ring were filled with cars of every description. Roadsters, sedans, and station wagons afforded choice seats to the spectators, but the most advantageous seats, and certainly the most picturesque, were those in the canopied surrey which the Donald M. Merrills shared with the Harold Behlkes, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hulburt.

Genuine enthusiasm greeted the efforts of the exhibitors, particularly in the children's horsemanship class, which was won by young Peggy Orth Jones; and in the graceful hackney ponies class, wherein the sole woman competitor, Mrs. William D. Bangs Jr., was awarded first place.

The spectators, however, outdid themselves in handclapping and horn tooting for the costume bareback event. Miss Hope Casselberry appeared as Humpty Dumpty; Mrs. Louis F. Chase as a blackfaced balloon vender; and Arthur Waller, on a diminutive horse, as a nightgowned and nightcapped baby. But the show was stolen by Mrs. Montgomery Orr, who took the hurdles as "an old bearded man put on backwards," to quote her mother-in-law. Mrs. Corwith Hamill, as Lady Godiva, won second place in a pink bunting and streaming blond string tresses.

The last three events of the day were captured by Denison B. Hull. Mr. Hull, Mrs. Hull, and their son, Lyman, won the family class; Mrs. Kimball Salisbury rode with Mr. and Mrs. Hull for first place in the hunter teams; and Mr. Hull rode to victory in the champion local hunters division.

Miss Mary Hale's Engagement to Howard F. Gillette Jr. Told

BY JUDITH CASS.

AT A SMALL reception for the families and close friends at their home in Winnetka yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Howard F. Gillette Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Gillette of Chicago and Santa Barbara, Cal.

The news is of especial interest, for both young people are members of well known Chicago families. Mr. Gillette Sr. was president of the Chicago Council of Boy Scouts for several years and also was active in the Sea Scouts. He and Mrs. Gillette have been greatly missed since they moved west a few years ago. They were not here for the announcement party yesterday.

Miss Hale, one of the prettiest of the debutantes of two seasons ago, is a graduate of Dobbs Ferry and a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league. She has a younger sister, "Ruddy" Hale, who is one of the belles of this season's group of debutantes. Each had a June coming out party, a dinner-dance at home.

Young Mr. Gillette is engaged in business in Chicago. He is a graduate of Harvard and has been making his home with several other young bachelors.

T. Philip Swifts to Give Luncheon for Miss Cathcart.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift have taken one of the most coveted dates of the Christmas holiday season to entertain for Miss Patricia Cathcart, the James A. Cathcarts' debutante daughter. The Swifts' party will be a luncheon on New Year's day at the Onwentsia club.

There are several small parties on the debutantes' calendars for the next two weeks. Today Mrs. Ted Matthiessen will give a beach party for her niece, Miss Jean Matthiessen, and on Wednesday another aunt, Mrs. Ira C. Matthiessen, will give a luncheon at the Exmoor. Miss Matthiessen and Miss Merikay Howard will be the especial guests of Mrs. Mellon Martin at a dinner and dancing party at the Indian Hill club on Thursday.

Miss Peggy Ware will give a luncheon for Miss Adrienne Ely Sept. 18 at the Woman's Athletic club. Miss Lydia Elliott and Miss Eleanore Zeiss will share honors at a luncheon party Miss Patsy Blackett is giving today at the Racquet club. Mrs. Charles H. Coffin will give a luncheon for Miss Elliott on Sept. 16.

Betty Butler to Make Debut Next Saturday.

Because Miss Betty Butler, debutante daughter of the John M. Butlers of Winnetka, soon will be leaving for the east to enter her sophomore year at Smith college, only one party will be given for her this fall. It will be her formal debut, a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club next Saturday. All other parties will be postponed until the Christmas holidays.

Altho Edward Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, will be missing the debut parties in Chicago during the next few weeks, he will make up for this loss at a round of visits in the east. Young Mr. Cummings, who is a junior at Yale, has left for Seal Harbor, Me., to visit the Chauncey McCormicks' son, Roger. Both young men will go to Greenwich, Conn., for the debut of Miss Barbara Bobbs Grosset, then Mr. Cummings will go to Fairfield to visit his classmate Lowell Palmer. He will spend the remaining time in New Canaan, Conn., with his roommate, Arthur Watson.

National Net Finalists to Play Here Tomorrow.

Among those who have taken boxes for some exhibition tennis matches to be played at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Saddle and Cycle club are the I. Newton Perrys, Louis Sudler, president of the club; the Solomon B. Smiths, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Harris, the Eugene Swigarts, the Cyrus Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cross, and the Louis Watermulders. The matches will consist of a men's singles, a men's doubles, a mixed doubles, and girls' singles. The exhibitors will be the finalists in the national championships, just concluded at Forest Hills, N. Y. The matches will be open to the public.

Friends of the cast of David Bradley's "Oliver Twist" have been invited to the première of his full length film tonight in Matz hall of Winnetka Community house. After the performance the cast of 100 and their guests will attend a dance at the Glencoe Woman's club which Mrs. Thomas Collins is giving for her daughter, Muriel, who served as assistant director.

Tomorrow the chamber of commerce of Winnetka will sponsor a public showing of the movie for the benefit of the Red Cross. The performance will start at 7:30 o'clock. Admission will be 50 cents.

N. U. Medical Professors' Wives to Give Benefit.

All the women who attend a card party the Women's Faculty club of Northwestern university medical school will give on Oct. 7 will be wearing their most attractive bonnets, for a committee of judges will award a hat from a Michigan avenue shop to the owner of the most becoming headgear. Among the judges will be Mrs. Orville S. Babcock, Mrs. Henry Field,

Murder Is Not Mute

By Audrey Newell

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

Detective Doyle of New York is vacationing in a small town resort, when while walking in the woods on the estate of Adolph Wunsch, wealthy ex-brewer, he stumbles upon a skeleton. After rejecting the bribe of Truman Briault, Wunsch's brother-in-law, to keep the discovery quiet he reports to the village police and is asked to help solve the mystery, as Dr. Blake, the coroner, pronounces the skeleton that of a young girl between 18 and 25, who was murdered about a year ago. Both the victim and the murderer point to Wunsch's household, which is strained and unhappy. Paula, Wunsch's beautiful young second wife, is miserable because her husband has been making nightly trips to New York, accompanied by Follins, the chauffeur. Thirteen months ago Wunsch sent his 18 year old daughter, Texie, to Europe, chaperoned by Paula's mother, because he learned Texie and Truman were having an affair. At the same time Texie's companion, Helen Voss, left to take a business course in New York and has not been heard of since. Wunsch's old father is so ill that they have a trained nurse, young Miss Doty, to care for him. He spends his time reading his Bible and looking for his cane. Gossip has it that Texie also had a romance with Follins. Each member of the household is suspected from time to time and things grow more complicated when some one shoots at Paula while she is telephoning Doyle. Doyle believes the murdered girl is Helen Voss, until he trails Wunsch on his nightly trips and finds him first visiting the apartment of Helen and then going the rounds of night clubs by himself. Doyle goes to Helen's apartment and while she is in another room a woman opens a door and hastily whispers she is being held a prisoner. Doyle later encounters Wunsch and makes him admit that Texie disappeared from the boat the day she was to have sailed and that he was hunting her in night clubs, meanwhile paying Helen Voss to hold Mrs. Briault in keep down gossip. As he has received numerous letters from Texie asking for money he feels she is still alive, but Doyle convinces Wunsch Texie is the girl who was murdered and that the letters were forgeries. Follins admits he drove Texie from the boat home the day she was supposed to have sailed for Europe. He claims he took her to the old brewery on the Wunsch estate for her to meet Truman and that Truman killed her and threatened him if he told. Together, he says, they divided her jewels and money she had with her. Doyle finds the jewels hidden in Truman's room, hears a shot while he is searching there, and finds Truman killed as he is entering the house. Dying, Truman accuses Follins, but Wunsch and Paula claim Follins was with them when the shot was fired.

MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE.

INSTALLMENT XLIII.

Doyle went out to join Dr. Blake and Judge Blain.

Dr. Blake looked at the detective shrewdly. "You're all in," he observed. "You've been doing too much."

"Too much cockeyed guessing," Doyle said dejectedly. "Did you get the bullet?"

Judge Blain rolled the pellet in the palm of his hand. "Same as the other two," he told Doyle.

"What about the angle of the shot?" Doyle asked the doctor. "Anything indicate it was fired from the house? Or am I wrong about that, too?"

"Obviously the only place it could have come from," the doctor reassured him heartily. "The bullet entered just above the heart and plowed down at a sharp angle. He was shot from an elevation angle of about 25 feet."

"Any way of telling from which side of the house?" Doyle pressed.

The doctor shook his head. "The bullet entered the left side of the body, but the angle at which Briault was walking would affect that. And so would the variance between aim and accomplishment."

"Wouldn't have to allow much for that," Blain demurred. "I'd say the murderer is a crack shot. Did a neat job on Briault. Got the girl with one shot, too."

"But missed Mrs. Wunsch," Doyle reminded. "And at much closer range."

Blain shrugged. "Nerves, probably."

Doyle was discouraged and chagrined. The best place for him was home—even a home in the Seaview.

"I'll be back in the morning," he told the others. "You'll have to let the district attorney in on this now. There'll be the inquest and the press to deal with, and all the rest of the red tape. You can say that I'm in Wunsch's employ as a private investigator. But you understand, of course, that I'll work along with you fellows."

Doyle had the happy faculty which most men and few women possess—he could escape from trouble into sleep. And usually, when he awoke he found himself able to deal with whatever had been disturbing him in the way of anger or worry or failure.

But the morning following that fateful Tuesday yielded no panaceas. He opened his eyes with the dawn and found his mind still dark and confused by the mysterious deaths of Texie Wunsch and Truman Briault.

It seemed logical that the falsities in Follins' account of Texie's death, plus his disappearance after the killing of Truman, plus Truman's dying statement, added up to proof of Follins' guilt. But the chauffeur's alibi, vouched for by the family of the murdered couple, made that summation preposterous. The last people on earth to furnish Follins with a fake alibi would be Paula and Adolph Wunsch.

So Follins was innocent, unless, Doyle mused, an accomplice of Follins had fired at Truman, but it didn't make sense, the detective was forced to admit, that Follins would take on a new accomplice to rid himself of an old; he'd be no better off than before.

Forget about Follins, Doyle admonished himself, and look at the facts. Texie and Truman, dead. And only by chance was Paula Wunsch not with them. So the plan, as disclosed thus far, was to kill Wunsch's wife and daughter and brother-in-law. Why these three?

Obviously Truman had been aware of an enemy when he told Doyle he dare not talk because his life was endangered. But Texie had gone fearlessly to meet her death. And Paula had blurted, as she kneeled beside her brother's body, that her fear had been of him.

Was this fear of Paula's founded upon partially astute suspicion? Had Truman conspired with another to get at Wunsch's fortune, and refused to go ahead with the conspiracy when he found it involved murder? With whom would Truman conspire? With Follins? But how could Follins hope to benefit by the deaths of Texie and Paula?

Now Wunsch's father had been stricken and lay on the brink of death. Was that pure coincidence? Or had the old man's stroke been induced by threat or attack? Had the old man collapsed in terror when a gun was pointed at him? And had the murderer then stayed his hand, content to wait for the inevitable passing of the last obstacle to the goal of the Wunsch millions?

Who might conceive a mad plan to remove Wunsch's heirs, and then by winning Wunsch's favor, inherit his fortune legally?

Doyle let his thoughts rove at random and brought up short at the image of the arch Comtesse de Briault. He rejected the notion distastefully. That was too horrible, too unnatural, to believe.

Doyle was again confronted in his thoughts by the image of a woman—a young woman—a personable woman—for whom Wunsch had given evidence of trust and affection. But again Doyle violently rejected unwelcome fancy. He'd had years of experience judging human nature, and Helen Voss, he told himself fiercely, was O. K.

So his mind lurched away from the thought of her and went blank and unhelpful for some moments. Until it recalled an item he had completely forgotten. Texie's notebook.

He leaned out of bed to the chair on which his coat was flung, and pulled it over to get at the notebook which he had tucked in an inner pocket. He turned the pages slowly, reading everything, somewhat let down by the innocuous character of the inscriptions. Shopping lists. Fittings. Hairdressings. Notations of luncheons and matinées.

The dates of these engagements covered the first eight months of the previous year—to within a week of the sailing of the Philippe.

Flipping the last blank pages hurriedly, Doyle found that a folded paper had been wedged between the outer leather binding and the inner leather lining of the back cover. With fingers which fumbled with excitement he poked the paper out and unfolded it.

What he read sent him bounding from the bed, utterly oblivious to Ellen's indignant protests. For he held in his hand, properly executed and duly stamped and sealed, a certificate of the marriage of Texas Wunsch and Henry Follins.

It was dated the day of the Philippe's sailing.

Doyle climbed the stairs to Follins' quarters over the garage and entered without knocking.

Follins was lying on his bed reading the newspaper accounts of the murders. He threw the paper aside and stared truculently at the detective.

Doyle said without preamble, "Here's another paper you'll be interested in," and he waved the marriage certificate under the chauffeur's nose.

Follins swung his feet off the bead. "Where did you get that?" He was trembling.

"Stuck in her notebook. Under the cover."

"I couldn't find it," Follins said in a dazed tone. "I thought she must have had it on her—in her clothes some place." His look was a curious mixture of relief and despair. "Are you going to tell him?" he asked.

"Tell whom?"

"Mr. Wunsch."

Doyle laughed at the ludicrous question. "What the hell's the matter with you? Don't you know the district attorney's men are here? And the place is swarming with reporters? The whole world is going to know about this."

"Please don't tell," Follins pleaded. "I got to save my job. Chauffeuring's all I know. And if you tell about my marriage, Wunsch will fire me. And no one will take me on—not chauffeuring private."

Doyle hardly knew what to make of this amazing understatement. Was Follins feeble-minded—or merely trying to appear that way to escape the punishment which awaited him? The detective spoke with harsh scorn.

"What the devil are you trying to pull? You know damn well this paper means more than losing your job. It means indictment for the murder of Texie Wunsch."

Follins shook as with an ague. His face was ashen.

"But it wasn't me. You must know if I was married to her, I wouldn't kill her. Why would I kill my own wife?"

"To get her two thousand dollars," Doyle said contemptuously. "And her jewelry that was worth twenty times that."

Park Visitors View Water Lilies, Large and of Many Colors

Thousands of visitors to Chicago's parks yesterday took advantage of the balmy weather to view the park district's aquatic gardens, which are at the height of their beauty and will remain in bloom until frost. Running the gamut of colors, the water lilies, many of which are a foot in diameter, may be seen in Garfield, Douglas, Humboldt, Lincoln, Jackson, and Gage parks. Among the blooms on display are several which were originated at Garfield park, including the August Koch, named after the retired park district horticulturist; the Jane Addams, the Pink Pearl, and the Chicago. Several new hybrids, as yet unnamed, and many well known varieties of water lilies, both hardy and tropical, blanket the surfaces of pools and streams.

Prettiness Is Rivaled by Individuality

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It's a habit of some mothers to display a pretty child's photograph to the visiting guests and sometimes demand to know why a girl with a face like her child's isn't picked out by a Hollywood scout. It may be a child of the Shirley Temple age or one of the popular late-teen-age rivals for celluloid fame. If some one tells mamma that, yes, her girl does resemble one of the Lane girls or Rosalind Russell or some other screen celebrity, mamma feels her case is clinched. The scouts jes' don't know a pretty girl when they see one. BUT—

It's mamma and likely mamma's daughter who are wrong, for the homegrown photograph isn't the test to which Hollywood ascribes now. In fact, a girl who does not photograph exceptionally well, a girl who does not resemble any already established screen personage at all, stands a better chance of being recognized as good motion picture material.

"After 20 years with cameras," says Charles Lang, Hollywood studio head, "I've come to the conclusion that young girls, who have beautiful regular features, altho they photograph wonderfully, haven't much chance to get anywhere in films. The girls who do get ahead have character in their faces. Some aren't beautiful. In fact, some have homely features which make them extremely difficult to photograph, but they have a quality above and beyond beauty, something that stands out. The face must have something to 'sell,' something that is different and unusual. Girls with the common, ordinary variety of prettiness mean nothing in front of a camera."

It's because of that clause dealing with being different, unusual, interesting, that we quote the cameraman's remarks. It is a theme about which you are going to hear more and more. The copyist is out of the picture. As some one aptly put it: "Imitation is the sincere expression of inferiority." So, young women don't be copyists. Don't be imitators. Be that something that only you can be with your charms and graces developed upon your own individual plan.

Sugar and spice and everything nice, including molasses, that's what gingerbreads are made of. There seem to be three classes of gingerbread eaters, those who eat it as bread, those who eat it for dessert, and those amiable souls who will take gingerbread at any time, at either or both places in the menu.

To face facts, gingerbread is a cake, not a bread, and so belongs at the end of the meal. It seems most suitable when it is served as bread to make it the accompaniment of a fruit salad luncheon.

Gingerbread plain is as good as gingerbread fancy, but sometimes it's nice to dress the plain cake up a bit, making a super dessert of it.

Bake gingerbread from a prepared mix or from this good standard recipe, and vary it from time to time in some such ways as those I'm going to suggest.

Gingerbread
[8 inch square pan]
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup butter, margarine, or other shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup molasses
¾ cup hot water

Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together several times. Cream shortening and sugar thoroly, add eggs and molasses, and beat well. Alternately add dry ingredients and molasses and hot water. Pour into a greased pan and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour.

Gingerbread Variations.

1. Serve warm gingerbread with whipped cream, lemon sauce, custard sauce, or chocolate sauce.
2. Split the gingerbread into layers and fill with sliced bananas and sweetened whipped cream. Top with more cream.
3. Melt one-third cup of butter and 1 cup light brown sugar in a skillet, cover with sliced apples, peaches, canned pineapple, peas, or another fruit, pour in the gingerbread batter, and bake as an upside down cake. Turn out and serve with whipped cream while still warm.
4. Add chopped nuts and raisins to the batter.
5. Add two-thirds to 1 cup fresh or drained canned berries, or fresh or canned drained, finely cut fruit to the batter before baking.
6. Substitute strong black coffee for the hot water in the recipe.
7. Fold molasses instead of sugar into the whipped cream you serve on gingerbread cupcakes. The flavor is delicious and quite suited to this dessert.
8. Make this apple butter filling and topping for gingerbread: Whip a half pint of cream, fold in ¼ cup apple butter and ½ cup chopped nuts.
9. Work cream cheese until soft, and thin it to whipped cream consistency with cream or fruit juice [try some crushed pineapple and juice in it], and use as filling, topping, or both for gingerbread.
10. Substitute a fourth cup cocoa for a fourth cup of flour in the recipe to make a dark, rich, chocolate gingerbread, good plain with whipped cream, or with ice cream as topping.
11. Bake gingerbread batter in a waffle iron and serve with whipped cream, ice cream, or crushed fresh fruit—peaches, for example.
12. Make tiny gingerbread cup cakes and frost with mocha, lemon, or pineapple confectioners' sugar icing.

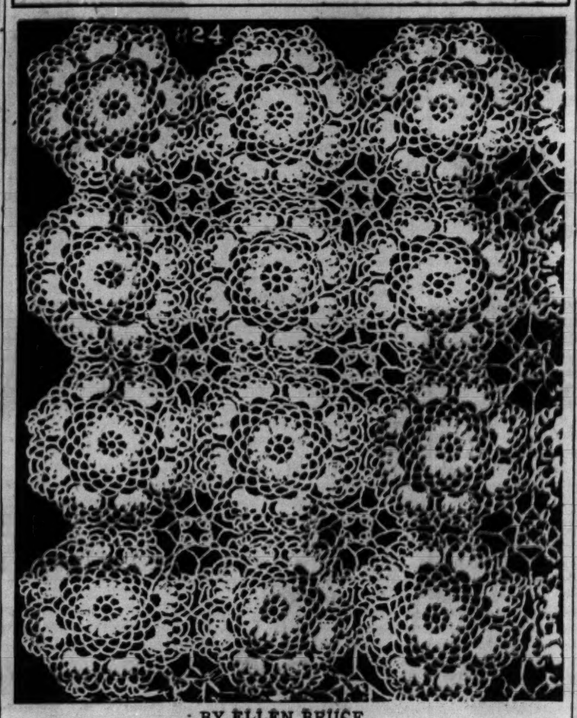
Handsome Tablecloth Design



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

For the crochet worker who wants an unusually handsome tablecloth, this mesh and medallion motif affords a perfect opportunity to create a masterpiece. It is a simple design, and the medallions are joined as the work progresses. Ivory, mercerized crochet cotton is the medium of execution for the original, but a fine mercerized crochet cotton may be used with equal success. This is one of those rare patterns which may be worked during the course of conversation without mishap to either!

For instructions in crocheting the tablecloth in the mesh and medallion motif, No. 824, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th Avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

I sometimes wonder whether defenders realize how easy, or how hard, they can make matters for the declarer. To follow every so-called rule of play, to cover honors with lamblike docility, to signal for a certain lead when the declarer is wondering just who holds the vital card, all these are so much grist to the clever declarer's mill. Thus, the hand shown below illustrates how easy it was for declarer to fulfill his slam against the wooden defense put up by the East player.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
6 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

South really had no right to make a slam bid. He had expressed his holding to within a small fraction of honor tricks by his vulnerable no trump. North's raise from one to four was about as good a bid as he could make, since his only suit [hearts] was none too robust.

West opened the 10 of spades; dummy won with the ace, and noting that both the heart and diamond finesses had to be taken, declarer first laid down the heart queen. East, feeling that it would be futile to duck and thereby leave himself with the blank king, covered, and declarer, of course, won with the ace. Now that two heart tricks had been assured, declarer crossed to the club king and took the diamond finesse. When this lost declarer could see only 11 top tricks, but he quickly and easily acquired the 12th trick by leading a heart to dummy and finessing against West's 10 spot.

Let us see what would have happened had East played the deuce on the heart queen. Undoubtedly declarer would have shifted to a diamond, and deferred the heart guess until later. West would have won when declarer finessed the diamond, and returned a spade. At this stage declarer could have counted only three spade, three diamond, and three club tricks, which, with the heart queen already won and the ace of hearts to come, would total only 11. The 12th trick could be obtained from no other place than hearts. How, then, would the declarer guess the heart situation?

If East had started with the king and two small, no play whatever would shut out the defenders from a heart trick. East would cover the jack and establish West's 10, or play low to a small card and force the ace from declarer. If East had started with the king and three small, West would have had the 10 singly guarded, and that combination would require the play of dummy's jack at the second round. [Obviously, no play would work against the king-10 and one or two small cards in East's hand.] How, then, would the declarer have decided to play the hearts? That never will be known, but it can be said that East's play took all the guessing out of the situation.

Help in Care of Baby Brings Reward to Dad

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

One was an actor I knew who was fully as good at putting his babies to bed and at feeding them as their mother was.

Another was a business man whose children remember him best, I think, for that hour before bedtime when he'd get them into their nighties and draw pictures to illustrate the stories he told.

Still one more who comes to my mind was a very prominent person in the professional field. He could do one of the neatest jobs I ever saw of "changing" a baby.

It's nice to see a man at home with babies and children. The man who can bathe a baby, dress it, feed it, and hold it with an accustomed hand seems more a father than the one who can't. Some men aren't built that way, I suppose. Actually, the paternal is left out of their makeup. Other men have a detached feeling about performing any of the physical offices for a baby. They think it's the mother's part entirely.

A man may be a good father, an understanding one, but his relation to his babies and little children is made completer if he takes some of the physical care of them, both when they're sick and when they're well.

There is an indefinable something that comes to a father, as well as to the mother, with at least some of the physical care of the baby. Besides the indefinable, I've seen a definite result in several cases. A sense of responsibility, for instance, seems to go hand in hand with this physical care when a father assumes some of it, and a sense of responsibility is a big thing for a parent to feel.

Generally speaking, it makes for a closer tie between a child and its father, evens up its dependence and affection between the two parents, which is a good thing, since a father is away more than he is at home.

Then, quite aside from all the cool, valid reasons for it, there is a feeling of pleasure, a richer sense of companionship and fatherhood that comes to a man who does more than talk to and play with the bathed, fed, finished product from his wife's or a nurse's hands.

Betrothed Woman Torn Between Her Father and Fiance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I am to be married soon and my fiancé does not want us to move in with my father for the first year of our married life. That's what I want to do. We have a nice home, which we own, and have plenty of room. My father is completely alone except for me. . . .

"My fiancé says that if I feel I should stay home and look after my father he is willing to wait for us to get married later, but as I am 35 now, you see I have not much time for waiting. Do you think my duty is to stay on at home with my dad and look after him, or should I follow my fiancé's wishes and get a place of our own?—J. K."

To be confronted with a problem such as yours, J. K., is extremely harassing. We wish your fiancé could be persuaded to give your marriage a trial under your dad's roof.

He is within his rights, however, in demanding his own little home and his place as head in the establishment. So if it is a real issue between you two, you may have to arrange for a housekeeper for your dad's home while you pursue the management of your husband's apartment.

Chi Psi Names President.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 8 (AP).—Charles E. Merrill of New York was elected national president of Chi Psi, social fraternity, yesterday.

Two Frocks for Fall Silks

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESSES.

Designed especially for satin and other luxurious autumn silks are these two costumes which are particularly flattering to the mature figure, altho their lines are becoming to slimsters, too. In the left-hand panel is a one piece dress with companion jacket. The former has interesting detail in the shoulders, a softly shirred bodice, fitted waistline, and graceful gored skirt. The jacket is a rather long one that is collarless and is trimmed with pockets at the hemline.

At the right is a one piece model with molded skirt that derives fulness from inverted plaits. The waistline points up into the bodice, which is softly shirred. The shoulders are broad in contrast to the waistline.

Style No. 3370 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for dress, with 2¼ yards for jacket.

Style No. 3477 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Hunting Season Tale.

Bill Harshe's latest Nantucket story concerns the daughter of an islander who plays with the children of some summer visitors. The mother of the visitors, making polite conversation, asked about the father of the Nantucket child.

"He ain't," she said. "He was tuck for a de-ah."

Nantucket Island Deer.

We questioned Mr. Harshe's foregoing story on the grounds that there were no deer on Nantucket. Which shows how much we knew. It seems that some years ago some fishermen found a deer swimming 14 miles offshore and brought it to the island. Shortly thereafter Breckinridge Long, now assistant secretary of state, imported a fawn and two bucks to the island. The deer multiplied so rapidly that hunting seasons, one day each, have been declared twice in the last three years. During the latest, 100 deer and three men were shot, if we can believe what we hear.

By Way of Report.

Count Stephan Ostrowski, new French teacher at the University School for Girls, formerly a member of the Polish consulate here, is a Chicagoan with personal experience of a German blitzkrieg. The train on which he fled Warsaw with fellow members of the Polish foreign office was bombed and machine gunned 72 times before it reached Hungary. One of his brothers was killed during the German occupation of Poland, one is in a concentration camp, and he has no knowledge of the whereabouts of a third. Nor has he had any word of his mother or sister for many weeks.

Big City Memo.

(In the morning mail.)

While walking down La Salle street en route to eight hours of Gregg to the tune of ticker tape, I found two small purple asters on the floor of the man-made canyon, in front of the swinging doors which hungrily breakfast on thousands of workers daily.

I surmise the asters were dropped by a commuter who didn't dare leave all of God's country back home in the suburbs.

For the rest of my life, when I open my prayerbook and find a purple aster on page 97 as a bookmark for the Prayer for Courage, I shall remember a morning when the gray stone street discolored my heart and how two purple blossoms brought back life and love.

Shoppers Find Fall Fashions Are Irresistible

BY REA SEEGER.

Enough new things are featured all over town to keep appreciative shoppers broke. New streamlines are viewed appraisingly, new hats click instantly, new costume accessories cause thanksgiving because gloves, bags, and footwear are matched in tone exactly.

The daytime clothes and slim, distinctive suits get the biggest hands. Dress and jacket ensembles have a new lease on fashion popularity, no matter whether the dress be wool to match the jacket or of combined wool and crêpe teamed with a wool jacket. These softer detailed, much softer line suits or ensembles are tremendously effective. They flatter and yet achieve the necessary snap that banishes all hint of dowdiness.

Big checked wools and plaids in giddy strong colorings are going out fast, especially when they are worn with high colored jackets or knee length coats. Vivid green and yellow plaid wool with a vermilion swagger jacket is one of the blinders.

Spectators may flinch before the blazing color contrasts but there are few who can resist the strong color combines the way smart designers have managed this trickery.

Jersey and soft woolen daytime dresses have reached a new all time record for chic and snap. Pert flounces, plaited precisely, edge the hemline of the pencil straight skirt. Fine tucks radiate from waistline to hem in others. Inverted plaits that swing into motion when in action are pressed as smoothly flat as wall paper. Neutral colors are smart with high or black costume accessories, such as chunky new jewelry and fur pieces.

Buttons still march down the front, buttons of shining gold metal, silver filigree or the many amusing baubles of curious shapes and sizes.

When the buttons are left off because of flat concealed front zippers, the belts make up for their dazzle with flashing nail heads, simulated gems, large metal buckles or other decorative trim. And there are more stunning dull black daytime dresses this season than ever before.

INDIANS WHIP SOX IN 10TH; TIGERS, YANKS WIN

FELLER HANGS UP 24TH, 5 TO 4, IN RELIEF ROLE

Keeps Cleveland on Top; Lyons Loser.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 8.—The White Sox slipped today when confronted by the one big opportunity they have been awaiting. The possibility of knocking their chief tormentors, Cleveland's Indians, out of first place was in their hands and while they battled brilliantly to accomplish their purpose it availed them nothing. They succumbed, 5 to 4, in 10 innings, but only after Bob Feller had been rushed into action to delay the forward march threat of the Tigers and Yankees.

So precarious is the Indians' hold on first place that a defeat today would have knocked them into a tie for second with the Yankees and placed the Tigers on top. As it was, Cleveland came out of the day's battling with only a one point lead over the Tigers. The Tigers have won one more game than the Indians, but also have lost one more. Cleveland has a chance to pad its lead tomorrow, since its game with Chicago is the only one in the American league. Both the Tigers and Yankees won today.

Solters Smashes Homer.

All kinds of heroics were tossed into a wild struggle in which the Indians were desperate about the ending of a six game losing streak and the Sox equally as desperate about the way the Tribe has been kicking them around all year. Old Ted Lyons went from start to finish waiting for a break that never came. Julius Solters exploded a homer that tied the score just as his old mates were ready to concede they had won something. And even Umpire Bill Summers cut in on the excitement. He tossed Clarence [Soup] Campbell, a freshman, out of the game for being fresh.

The Sox grabbed an early one run lead off Al Milnar, a gawky southpaw, but all this was changed in the fourth. Ken Keltner smacked a homer with one on and later in the inning an error by Jim Webb led to a third run. The Indians hung up another run in the fifth, and the Sox countered with one in the sixth. It remained that way until the eighth, when, after a single by Mike Kreevich, Solters overpowered the pitch that finally dropped in the left field stand, more than 400 feet from the plate, to tie the score. An inning later Milnar was gone, knocked out by a bunt, and from then on Feller knocked out the Sox.

Heath Starts Winning Rally.

Lyons, after being scored on in the fifth, came thru with four innings in which there were only two singles, not counting Umpire Summers' questionable decision on which Rookie Campbell protested so noisily in the ninth that he was bounced. But when Jeff Heath pried open the 10th with a two bagger to left, Lyons was brought face to face with his season's eighth beating. Tresh complicated it a bit with a passed ball. Keltner filed to Kreevich, who was playing close. With the infield drawn in because of a runner on third, Ray Mack got a single that Webb otherwise would have handled with ease. It sent Heath home.

Campbell, who is in the Indian outfield because of Roy Weatherly's injury, inadvertently drove in the run that gave the Sox an edge in the second inning. Solters opened with a double down the right field line. Appling, after fouling off a batch of pitches as is his custom, forgot to swing when an easy third strike floated past. Wright was thrown out by Boudreau and when Tresh lifted a high fly over right the inning seemed closed. But Campbell let it

The Great Dean Gets a Dugout Welcome

Dizzy Dean turned on his famous grin in the Cub dugout yesterday when his teammates told him they're glad he's back from his sojourn in the Texas league. OLSEN SNAPS CUB LOSING STREAK; BEATS REDS, 3-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Vern Olsen, who stopped a Cub losing streak at six straight in Pittsburgh last Monday, halted a three game losing streak yesterday when he led his mates to a 3 to 1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in Wrigley field. The Cubs thus have won two of their last 11 games, both of them pitched by Olsen.

Olsen, in ringing up his eleventh victory, was deprived of his fifth shutout of the season when Lonnie Frey scored on a double by Bill Myers with two out in the seventh inning, a spurious double which bloomed when a single skidded crazily and went to the wall.

The Cubs played spiritedly behind the kid star, even pepping up to the point of raising a voice against the umpires. None of the lads for weeks had become aroused to the point of protesting anything, so when Hank Leiber yelled so loud that he was chased by Umpire George Magerkurth it was epochal. The last chirp of any kind from the complacent Cubs was made in Olsen's game a week ago, and it, too, was made by Leiber, but against the official scorer in Pittsburgh, not anything that an umpire did.

Double Plays Help Olsen.

The Reds and Cubs thus concluded their 1940 business, with the Reds victors in 16 games, the Cubs in six. Jim Turner was the losing pitcher yesterday. The Cubs beat Junior Thompson once and Paul Derringer, their one time nemesis, four times.

The Reds made only seven hits off Olsen and three of these were nullified by double plays. Two of the double plays were made in the eighth and ninth innings, in which the Reds were making a bid to catch up.

While the Cubs had more than enough to win it took a lot of socking to get the three runs across. They made ten hits off Turner in six innings and four off Whitey Moore in the last two.

Hack Opens with Triple.

The Cubs touched up Turner in the first inning. Stan Hack opened the Chicago offensive with a triple, held on while Myers threw out Bill Herman and scored on Bill Nicholson's single to right.

It took four singles for the Cubs to get a run home in the fourth inning. Nicholson pushed off with a single and Leiber lined into a double play. Zeke Bonura singled to center, went to third on Jim Gleeson's single to left, and scored on Collins' single to left.

The Reds scored after Ernie Lombardi and Morris Arnovich had supplied infield outs in the seventh. Frey singled to center for the fourth Cincinnati hit and scored on Myers' dou-

Cardinals Tie Steelers, 7-7, in Pro Football Opener

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 8.—The Chicago Cardinals outfought and outplayed a more experienced Pittsburgh Steeler eleven today to gain a 7 to 7 tie in the opening game of the National Football league season. A forty-four yard forward pass from Rookie Beryl Clark of Oklahoma to Rookie John Hall of Texas Christian, another half back, was the only break the young Cardinals got in a long afternoon under overcast skies before a crowd of 22,383.

It came in the third period and with Clark's extra point equalized the second period touchdown the Steelers had scored on a forty-five yard pass, Bill Patterson to George Platukis, and Armand Niccolai's placement.

Only two other scoring opportunities developed, both by the Steelers, and neither materialized. Niccolai missed a twenty-eight yard placement in the first period and another from the 50 yard line on the last play of the game. Both fell short.

Cardinals Get Tough.

This was the day when the Cardinals were to test 22 rookies against a Pittsburgh team that had whipped the mighty Chicago Bears and was reported to be rough and rugged. It was rough and rugged, but the farther the Cardinal youngsters went, the rougher and more vigorous they got themselves.

Led by Mario Tonelli, former Notre Dame full back, they punched out six first downs by rushing, passed to two others and gained 192 yards while the Steelers were being held to five first downs and 129 yards.

Operating with pardonable caution because of their unfamiliarity with the Notre Dame system installed by their new coach, Jimmy Conzelman, the Cardinals were plagued by the customary early season raggedness on offense. But their defense, especially in the line, was reminiscent of those days four years ago when the Cardinals seldom won but were never fooled and had a lot of promise.

Missed Signal Hurts.

A missed signal on the seventh play of the game led to a free ball that was recovered by Pittsburgh on the Cardinals' 16 yard line. The Cardinals fought off this misfortune and survived unhurt when Niccolai, one of the league's more talented field goal kickers, missed an easy attempt. Thereafter the Cardinals had to put up with every bad break in the game.

Pittsburgh found the Cardinal line stronger than even the more rabid Cardinal followers had hoped. Bulwarked by Joe Kuharich, a rookie guard from Notre Dame; Tackles Conway Baker and Tony Blazine and Center Ki Aldrich, the line kept the Steelers to a gain of only 65 yards by rushing. The chief surprise, however, was at the ends, where John Shirk and Alton Coppage, a couple of rookies who came up from Oklahoma with Clark, outplayed the Steelers' veterans, Platukis and Wilbur Sortet.

The Cardinals were willing to gamble and did as early as the second quarter when a long chance failed and gave Pittsburgh an opening to take the lead. Clark attempted to pass on fourth down on the Steelers' 34 yard line. In faking the ball to the right half back, he fumbled and recovered for a two yard loss, Pittsburgh taking the ball on its own 36 yard line.

Patterson Starts It.

Patterson, who was traded to Pittsburgh last spring by the Bears, swung wide around the Cardinals' left end for twelve yards. Boyd Brumbaugh, the veteran full back, who had a terrible afternoon trying to gain through the Cardinals' fiery line, picked up seven yards. Patterson then started on another wide run to the right, while Platukis went straight down from his left end position. Bert Johnson, the Cardinal quarter back, was tardy in covering Platukis and when Patterson wheeled to pass across the field, the big end was all alone on the 18 yard line. The play gained forty-five yards and six points. Niccolai added the extra point from placement.

The Cardinals put together two first downs in an advance of seventy-two yards to tie the score the first time they got possession of the ball in the second half. This was the longest sustained drive of the game. The next one was fifty-one yards in which the Cardinals put together four first downs before Pittsburgh broke up the advance to get its touchdown drive under way.

The seventy-two yard foray opened with Hall going wide around the

Marble and Jacobs Play for Women's Title Today.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The 59th annual national singles tennis tournament followed form perfectly today, so Bobby Riggs, the national champion, will meet Don McNeill, the Oklahoma City youngster, for the championship tomorrow, just after Alice Marble and Helen Jacobs play for the women's title.

The only real thrills for the 12,000 spectators came in the match in which McNeill eliminated Jack Kramer of California, co-holder of the national doubles title. McNeill was the better sharpshooter and he won, after a shaky start, 6-1, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Riggs Wins in Five Sets.

Riggs outlasted Midshipman Joe Hunt in a tedious five set match, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Riggs was far from being at his peak and far from offering any excitement, merely outsteadied the erratic Hunt. The match lasted 2 hours and 35 minutes of actual playing time.

Miss Jacobs, after a slow start, defeated England's second best woman player, Mary Hardwick, by 2-6, 6-1, 6-4. Miss Marble, in turning back Valerie Scott, another English girl, 6-3, 6-3, had a strenuous workout. The English miss kept dropping the ball just over the net and Miss Marble had to come racing in from her favored baseline position time and again.

It's Repetition of 1939.

Miss Marble beat Miss Jacobs for the title last year, 6-0, 8-10, 6-4.

Watson M. Washburn of New York, a former Davis cup doubles player who at 46 is a mere stripling in his division, won the veterans' singles title by defeating S. Jarvis Adams Jr., an unseeded player from Port Washington, N. Y., 6-4, 6-2.

LANDIS PASSES UP CONTROVERSY IN KITTY LEAGUE

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis last night said he would take no action in a recent controversy involving two pennant contenders—Bowling Green, Ky., and Owensboro, Ky.—in the Kitty league.

"There was some talk that the Hopkinsville, Ky., and Jackson, Tenn., teams did not put out their best against Bowling Green," Landis said, "but after hearing details of the case from the clubs I am not going to interfere. There is no ground for action by my office and the matter is closed so far as I am concerned."

Landis conferred with officials of the Bowling Green, Hopkinsville, Jackson, and Owensboro clubs yesterday.

Bowling Green won the pennant several days ago.

WOMEN TO START WESTERN CLOSED TOURNEY TODAY

Seattle Wash., Sept. 8 (AP).—America's prominent women golfers were on the ground testing the tough par 76 Seattle Golf club course where they begin firing for the Women's Western Golf association's closed championship tomorrow.

A new champion is certain to be crowned, as Edith Estabrooks, who won last year, will not defend her title.

An 18 hole qualifying round will be played tomorrow by a field of nearly 150.

CEDAR RAPIDS WINS 2; TAKES 3 EYE TITLE

Cedar Rapids, closing the season with a double victory over Evansville, won the Three Eye league pennant last night in one of the closest races in many years. The Raiders defeated Evansville, 7 to 1 and 5 to 2, while Springfield lost to Clinton, 3 to 0. Cedar Rapids and Springfield had been tied for first place,

As she is kissing him good-by.
Far down the street he turns once more
To see her standing at the door
And waves again with proud delight
Before he vanishes from sight.

Too well her heart has understood

Who started off to school today.

YORK'S HOMER IN EIGHTH BEATS BROWNS, 5 TO 4

New York Wins from Red Sox, 9-4.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 8 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers came from behind for the fourth straight time today, conquering the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4, to remain less than two percentage points behind the leading Cleveland Indians.

Rudy York's 26th homer in the eighth inning nailed down Detroit's 18th victory in 22 games against the Browns this year. The victory was the Tigers' fifth straight and was scored before a crowd of 24,623.

Bridges Saves Game.

The Tigers had to fight an uphill battle because of the collapse by Pitcher Lynwood Rowe in the fourth inning. Singles by Rip Radcliff and doubles by Harlond Clift and George Susce around an intentional walk to George McQuinn produced four St. Louis runs.

Rowe was relieved by Paul Trout starting the sixth. The latter gave way to Tommy Bridges with two men out and the bases full in the seventh. Bridges got out of the difficulty and made his first relief start of the season a winning one.

Tigers Go to Work.

Johnny Niggeling, always a tough customer for the Tigers, went the route for St. Louis, yielding eight hits. Detroit did not score until the fifth when a pinch triple by Barney McCosky, a single by Bruce Campbell, a walk to Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg's triple sent three runs across the plate.

The Tigers tied the score in the sixth on a single by George Stainback, an infield out and George Tebbetts' single to left.

The Tigers rest tomorrow and then entertain the eastern clubs, the Boston Red Sox coming in for games Tuesday and Wednesday. The New York Yankees will follow Boston to town. Score:

YANKS BEAT RED SOX

Boston, Mass., Sept. 8 (AP).—The New York Yankees just about ruined the Boston Red Sox's pennant hopes and enhanced their own considerably today with a 9 to 4 triumph which swept the two game series between the clubs.

Spud Chandler held the Red Sox to eight scattered hits while his mates were pounding five Boston pitchers for 12 hits and receiving 11 bases on balls. Joe Gordon hit for the cycle for the Yankees and collected a pair of walks for a perfect day at bat.

Gordon Opens with Homer.

The champions, still a game off the pace by virtue of Indian and Tiger victories, head for Cleveland to open another crucial series with the faltering league leaders on Tuesday.

Gordon opened the game today with his 25th home run of the season, but Bobby Doerr duplicated it in the second to tie up the game.

TIGERS WIN, 5-4, ON RUDY YORK'S HOME RUN IN 8TH

Gordon connected for his single in the Yankee second but was left stranded. The champions picked up two more in the third. Joe DiMaggio walked but was out trying to reach third on Charlie Keller's single. Buddy Rosar singled to right and Keller reached third on Doc Cramer's poor throw, Rosar pulling up at second. Babe Dahlgren scored them with a sharp single to center.

Boston Pitchers Fail.

The Red Sox tied the score in the same inning when Cramer singled and came home on Jimmy Foxx's double, the Boston catcher counting on Doerr's single. The Yanks went ahead for good in the fourth when Gordon tripled and scored on Red Rolfe's double. George Selkirk singled to send Rolfe home. Gordon completed his cycle with a fifth inning double.

In the eighth, Boston's pitching came apart and the Yankees picked up four tallies on only two hits. Four bases on balls and a wild pitch contributed to the scoring cluster. Score:

2 Year Olds Run Saturday in Final Stake

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Two year old colts and fillies will begin pointing for their last stake event of the Chicago season as the Hawthorne meeting goes into its second week today. The Hawthorne Juvenile handicap, a six furlong event carrying an added money value of $5,000, is scheduled for Saturday.

J. D. Weil's Flying Streak, a gray filly which climaxed a succession of fast efforts by winning the $5,000 Prairie State stakes at Washington Park, will go after the Hawthorne prize. Among her rivals will be C. D. Angner's Air Brigade, winner of the Bashford Manor stakes at Churchill Downs last spring. The speedy De Kalb, owned by Jake Lowenstein; Mrs. J. F. Waters' Swell Chance, and other formidable youngsters are in the probable field.

Five Fifty Tries Comeback.

E. E. Irby's Five Fifty, winner of a Cuban stake during the spring racing, is among the likely starters, but he has failed to distinguish himself recently. The Shady Brook farm stable, which sent out Connaught to win last season's Hawthorne Juvenile handicap, is represented among the eligibles by Agricole and Cadmium.

Flying Streak no doubt will be established as the favorite. Previous to her victory in the Prairie State stakes, she had set a new track record for 5½ furlongs at Washington Park. Earlier in the season, she had run the fastest five furlongs of the Lincoln Fields meetings.

Distance Race Sept. 21.

Hawthorne is following the trend toward the restoration of distance racing by scheduling a $2,500 event at 2¼ miles for 4 year olds and up. This will be run Sept. 21, a week from Saturday. The series of distance gallops at Washington Park proved so popular that this department of racing is likely to receive close attention next year when the programs are drawn up.

Despite the loss of Labor day from its dates, Hawthorne is getting every assurance that it will have a successful meeting. The day by day mutuel handle shows a substantial increase over the corresponding days last season.

MILLS CAPTURE DOUBLE HEADER FOR SIX STRAIGHT

The Mills ran their winning streak to six straight by defeating the Chicago Giants and the Chicago Firemen in the semipro baseball double header in Mills stadium yesterday. The Spencer Coals split two games with the House of David in Spencer field.

Howard Berg, ex-University of Illinois right hander, pitched the Mills to their fifth victory in the first game, yielding six hits to the Chicago Giants for an 11 to 2 triumph. The Mills beat the Chicago Firemen, 4 to 2 in the second. The Coals won the first game from the House of David, 12 to 2, and the bearded nine the second, 12 to 5.

St. Adalbert Is Winner Over Louisville Nine, 13-5

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 8 [Special].—St. Adalbert, Chicago C. Y. O. baseball champion, added another title to its collection today when it defeated Holy Spirit, Louisville Catholic championship team, 13 to 5. St. Adalbert battered four pitchers to score nine runs in the seventh to clinch victory in this eighth annual contest between the Catholic leagues of the two cities.

Winnetka Cricket Team Beats Lake Forest, 71-38

Winnetka defeated Lake Forest, 71 to 38, to move within one game of the lead in the Illinois Cricket league yesterday on Skokie field. Chicago beat South Park, 135 to 35, and Washington Park won from Lake Shore, 89 to 57, in other games.

WARD SCORES 68 IN TUNEUP FOR NATIONAL GOLF

Bing Crosby Cards 79; Play Starts Today.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The 44th Amateur tournament of the United States Golf association will open on the west course of the Winged Foot Golf club tomorrow morning with a field of 150 players teeing off in the first 18 holes of the qualifying round. This session of stroke competition will be concluded with another 18 Tuesday.

The low 64 scorers for these two days will make up the match play cast, which gets down to business with double 18 hole duels on Wednesday and Thursday. This will pare the field to the semi-finalists, who will go 36 holes Friday, as will Saturday's finalists.

The field got in its last practice licks today, and voted the course one of the best tests of golf the tournament ever has enjoyed. Measuring 6,915 yards with a par of 36—36—72, Winged Foot boasts four of the toughest par three holes on a single American course.

Swing Music to Golf Swing.

There was a spell late this afternoon when a stranger, coming suddenly on the scene, might have thought he had arrived a week late and was witnessing the final match, so huge was one of the galleries coming up the stretch. Investigation revealed the cause as one Harry Lillis Crosby of Hollywood, Cal., sometimes known as Bing. The crooner, who has put his talent for swing into golf these last few years, will play as an alternate from the southern California section.

Bing had a 79 for the round, playing with Craig Wood, Winged Foot professional; Bill Bob Coffee of Fort Worth, Tex., and a fellow whose score was the most interesting of the day. This firm jawed young man would be Marvin [Bud] Ward of Spokane, Wash., the defending champion no less.

Ward, who only last week admitted that the golf he played in winning the Western Amateur title at Minneapolis in July was the poorest he ever played, proved today that he is back on his game by shooting a 37—31—68, four under par, and the best workout job of the meet.

This round, in which he holed out every putt, equalled the competitive course record, despite two three putt greens on the first nine. He started back in 3-3-3-2, then added five straight fours, for his 5 under par 31, only shot over Bobby Jones' record for the last nine.

Chick Evans Scores '34.

Another unusual performance today was submitted by Chick Evans of Chicago's Edgewater club, one of the ten former title holders competing. Playing with Wilford Wehrle of Tam O' Shanter in a nine hole best ball match against two other Chicagoans, George Victor of Glen View and Jack Hoerner of North Shore, the 50 year old Evans scored a 34 on his own ball to give himself and Wehrle a 2 up victory.

The other former winners are Ward, Francis Ouimet, Johnny Fischer, Willie Turnesa, Johnny Goodman, Jess Sweetser, Max Marston, Jesse Guilford, and George T. Dunlap.

The Chicago district will be represented by fifteen players. In addition to Evans, Wehrle, Victor, and Hoerner, there will be John Lehman of Olympia Fields, leader of the sectional trials at Flossmoor; Art Doering of Medinah; George Dawson of Glen Oak; George Reed of Riverside; Gus Moriand and Art Andrews Jr. of Peoria; Fred L. Schulz of Hinsdale; Bob Walker of South Bend; Jim Frisina of Springfield; Dr. Richard Ashley of Kenosha, and Henry Kowal of Indianapolis.

Sid Luckman passed to Johnny Siegel for first down on the 8 yard line and Bob Swisher hit tackle for the touchdown. Stydahar again kicked successfully.

Hirsch of Newark intercepted one of Osmanki's passes on the Chicago 26 yard line, Ronzani drove thru left tackle for nine yards, and Harry Stevenson, former Notre Dame back, tallied on an end sweep. Choborda kicked the extra point. The third Chicago score was a combination of a lateral and forward pass with John Wondenberg going over. McAfee ran for the extra point.

Aknusti Beats Texas, 10-8, in National Polo

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 8 [Special].—A strong finish moved Aknusti into the semi-final round of the National Polo tournament at Meadow Brook today. Entering the fifth period trailing by two goals, Ebby Gerry's four gradually fought its way to a victory over Texas, 10 to 8. On Wednesday Aknusti will face Mike Phipp's Gulfstream team in the second match of the semi-finals. The other semi-final clash will be played Tuesday, with Stewart Iglehart leading Great Neck against Bostwick Field.

Alan Corey Jr., last year's captain of Yale's intercollegiate champions, rode at back for the winners today and turned in an excellent performance. Perhaps the outstanding figure in the game was Ebby Gerry at No. 3 for the winners.

Texans Open with Rush.

The Texans started strong with Jimmy Mills flashing in front for two quick goals. Then Smith had a 40 yard free hit before Gerry drove thru the first goal for his side. Smith followed a run by Mills to make it 4 to 1 at the close of the first period.

Aknusti stayed in the fight in the second period, however, with Gerry Smith finishing off a good run to match Mills' score. The eventual winners came a bit nearer in the third period. Smith stretched it to 6 to 2 as the period opened, but Corey fed Ebby Gerry and then followed to finish off the latter's drive for goal. Gerry followed a team run to poke thru a backhander.

Aknusti Puts on a Rally.

After the rest period Charley Wrightsman scored again for Texas and Ebby Gerry cut thru a pass from his brother, Bobby, for an Aknusti score. In the fifth, the issue was really settled. An Aknusti attack rolled toward the goal and Oliver, trying to clear, fouled badly to have a No. 1 penalty awarded against him. Then Ebby Gerry passed to his brother for the tying score and, with the team rolling, Ebby Gerry centered for Gerry Smith and then Bobby Gerry stole from Smith and rode up alone to his side's ninth goal.

Wrightsman's goal in the sixth brought Texas back to the rim of a tie, but Ebby Gerry clinched it a while later when Gerry Smith stopped Cecil Smith's clearing shot in midair and left it for his No. 3 to come on and drive thru.

MONARCHS WIN TWO GAMES IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

Classic league bowlers have not as yet hit their stride judging by the low scores made at the Logan Square recreation last night. The Monarchs, A. B. C. champions, totaled 2,916, which was high for the evening, and won two games from the Koenig Braus. The latter won the last game by one pin, 908 to 907. The Schlitzes took two games from Ambrosia; the Michelobs won three games from Blatz, and Pabst took two from Ruppert. Paul Krumske bowled 669 for Pabst, and Leo Faetz' 256 game was high. Scores:

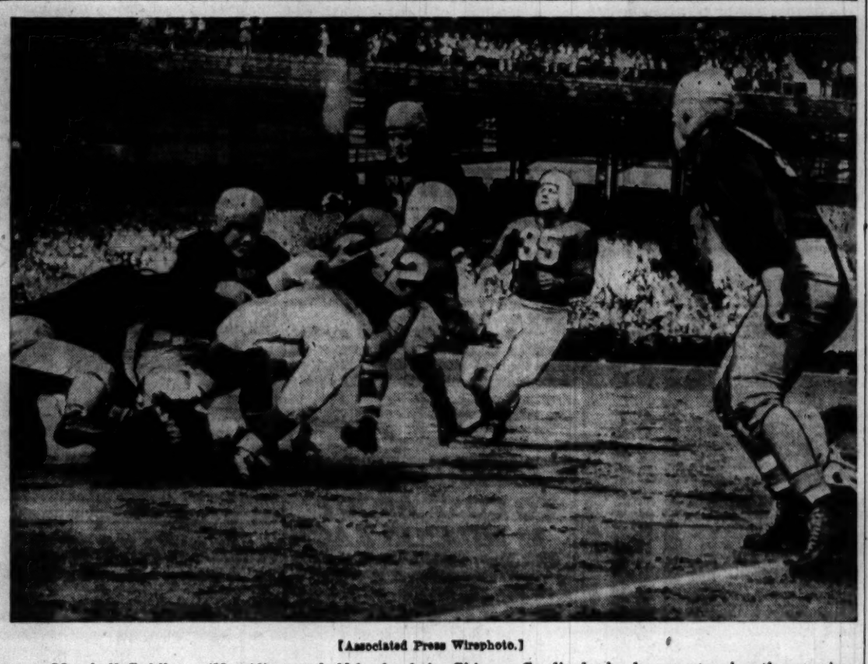
Cardinal Star Gets 20 Yards



[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Marshall Goldberg (No. 42), star half back of the Chicago Cardinals, is shown returning the opening kickoff 20 yards against the Pittsburgh Steelers in the first league game of the season in Pittsburgh yesterday. Two Steeler tacklers stopped Goldberg after his gain. The Cardinals surprised the Steelers by holding them to a 7 to 7 tie.

Lively Lady's Still Queen of Lake Q Yachts

Lively Lady is still queen of Lake Michigan's Q class yachts. Yesterday, for the third straight year, the 46 foot sloop, owned by Otto Dreher of the South Shore [Milwaukee] Yacht club, proved its superiority as the Lutz trophy series ended.

Lively Lady followed up its victory of Saturday with a triumph in yesterday morning's windward-leeward race, covering the 12 mile Jackson Park Yacht club course in 1 hour 22 minutes and 4 seconds in a moderate breeze. Then in the final race of the series yesterday afternoon the Milwaukee boat led all the way over rough, whitecapped seas. This race was sailed in a fresh north to northeast wind. The winner's time was 1:42:31. Thus, the Milwaukee boat's owner retained the Lutz trophy, emblematic of the competition.

Shamrock Wins Again.

In the final race Lively Lady was sailed by George Tanger, with a crew consisting of William Dreher, son of the owner; Gene Tanger, William Lepthian, William Lawrie, and Neal Tanger. Total score for the yacht was 15 points to Gloriant's 10. Quest, the Howard Baxter syndicate entry from the Grand Rapids [Mich.] Yacht club, was third with 9 points. Hope, William Wahsman's Columbia Yacht club sloop, was fourth with 6 points, and Princess fifth with 4 points.

John O'Rourke sailed his Shamrock to its third victory in the Lake Michigan 8 meter class championship series, sailed in conjunction with the Lutz trophy series by the Jackson Park Yacht club. Shamrock won the morning race in 1:28:20, and the final event in 1:49:32. Shamrock's total score for the two day series was 9 points. Al Pequet's Apt of the Chicago Yacht club was second with 5 points. Green Spot, Al Newman's Chicago Corinthian Yacht club 8 meter, was third with 4 points.

Delight, Russell Moon and Tempel Smith's Star class sloop, yesterday won its second victory of the weekend off Belmont harbor. Elapsed time for the eight mile Chicago Yacht club course was 1:34:04. Bubbling Over, Bert Williams' and Dr. Stanley Fahlstrom's Star boat, was second in 1:36:54.

Step-N-Fetchit Scores.

Step-N-Fetchit, the Otter brothers' Great Lakes champion Star yacht, won the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's race off Wilmette yesterday. The winning Star, sailed by Robert Bradbury and Richard Otter, defeated 14 other Stars with a time of 1:54:33.

Dry Sue, George Lawver and Kenneth Schmid's sloop, won the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club's point score race off Montrose harbor yesterday. Dry Sue covered the six mile course at an average speed of nearly seven miles an hour, to lead a dozen other ships. Dr. Ed Reinholtzen, owner of the R class sloop Quiver and the cruising yawl Lorelei, won the club's annual race in Snipes for skippers of large yachts. He sailed John Mohr's Mercury to victory.

Betty Bro, Commodore Milton Friend's flagship, won the Columbia Yacht club's handicap race off Grant park harbor with a corrected time of 1:26:19. The 36 foot cutter's elapsed time was 1:39:19. Fifteen other club yachts competed, all being limited to working sails. Alcore, the Horton-Drielsma syndicate owned Star boat, won the club's race for Stars.

Cardinals Tie Steelers, 7-7, in First Game

Steelers' right end for eight yards. Clark passed over the middle to Shirk for seven and then Tonelli took a whirl at the wide reverse around right end. He knocked down one defender and sidestepped another to get nine yards and place the ball on the Steelers' 48 yard line. Brumbaugh knocked down Clark's pass to Shirk, but Tonelli added four more yards thru center. Clark's third pass in the series was incomplete.

On the next play Hall sprinted out laterally to the sidelines, where Louis Tomasetti, the Steelers' half back, made a belated attempt to cover him. Hank Bruder, the former Green Bay Packer star, came up as Hall took Clark's pass and made a poor attempt to tackle the spinning rookie. Hall broke free down the sidelines, and, escorted by several redshirted teammates, sprinted over the goal for a forty-four yard gain and six points.

ARDELLE WINNER IN SAIL-OFF FOR RICHARDSON CUP

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 8 [Special].—Ardelle, the Lake Michigan Yachting association's entry in the biennial Richardson cup series, won the cup today after a sailoff on Lake Ontario. The race, sailed in a heavy rain with a moderate wind, was won by Cotton Blossom, the Lake Erie entrant from Cleveland, O. Ardelle was runner-up, finishing 20 seconds ahead of Kathea II., the Lake Ontario contestant.

Final standings for the Richardson cup, emblematic of the Great Lakes R class championship, gave Ardelle seven points, Kathea six points, and Cotton Blossom five. Ardelle was sailed by Clare Udell, skipper; Ed Schnabel, L. L. Karas, and C. E. Waltman, all of the Chicago Yacht club.

MAMAKOS TRIES TONIGHT TO GAIN ARON'S RANKING

Welter Contenders Box in Marigold Bout.

Steve Mamakos, perpetual motion boxer of Washington, D. C., will attempt to displace Milt Aron as foremost welterweight contender, in a 10 round bout tonight in Marigold outdoor arena, Broadway and Grace street.

Weight is 152 pounds, five more than the division limit, but that will not save Aron's position if he is beaten. The National Boxing association, which will open its annual convention in Milwaukee today, will release the championship committee's new ratings tomorrow.

Aron, regarded as Champion Henry Armstrong's leading challenger after knocking out Fritzie Zivic last December, retained the honor in the quarterly standings of the association last June. Whether he will survive the Milwaukee session's voting depends on his showing against Mamakos.

Mamakos Causes Concern.

Altho Aron is favored to win, his rival likely will give Milt's backers some anxious moments. The Chicagoan's handlers appeared worried after Saturday's final boxing workout, probably because they fear Steve may be a better boxer than advertised.

Mamakos, who will be making his first Chicago appearance, is an aggressive lad with a good left hand.

A highlight on the supporting card, one of the best arranged for the north side club, will be a 10 round contest between Young Kid McCoy of Detroit and Pete Lello, Gary sharpshooter. Lello, lightweight title aspirant, has permitted McCoy to carry 144 pounds, nine more than the class maximum. This disadvantage may prove too great for Pete to overcome.

Despite the fact that he is going out of his division in facing McCoy, Lello's No. 4 rating will be in jeopardy. McCoy, who has a record of 40 victories in 45 fights, will be fighting to earn a place among the first 10 welters.

Two Other 10 Rounders.

Nick Castiglione, west side lightweight, and Jimmy Bivins also will be after N. B. A. recognition when they appear in two other matches of 10 rounds, Castiglione against Billy Marquart and the Cleveland middleweight against Johnny Barbara.

Castiglione stepped into the spotlight by his hard battle with Sammy Angott, N. B. A. 135 pound title holder-er, in Mills stadium on July 24.

The Bivins-Barbara encounter is a return meeting, Barbara suffering a two round knockout in the Marigold arena previously.

Ralph [Ruffy] Silverstein, west side heavyweight wrestler, and Karel Krauser, Polish refugee, will feature mat cards tonight, Silverstein against Juan Humberto in Parichy stadium, Harrison street and Harlem avenue, and Krauser against Pete Schu in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

CALL OFFICIALS FOR MILWAUKEE UTILITIES PROBE

Ordered to Appear Before U. S. Jury.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 8 [Special].—Three officials of the Wisconsin Electric Power company and the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Transport company, together with two utilities accountants, four aldermen, and five members and former members of the state legislature, have been subpenaed to appear before a United States grand jury here tomorrow.

S. B. Way, one of the utility executives subpenaed.

They will be questioned by attorneys for the United States department of justice and by attorneys for the Securities and Exchange commission.

The Wisconsin Electric Power company and the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Transport company are two units into which the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company was divided a year ago. One provides light and power to Milwaukee and this community. The other operates the local and interurban street car system. Both are subsidiaries of the North American company.

Two Statutes Involved.

A petition filed with Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy is reported to have asked a grand jury investigation into purported violations of the securities exchange act and the public utility holding company act.

[Last May the SEC ordered hearings to determine whether the North American company and Union Electric company of Missouri, another subsidiary, had made illegal political contributions. Last month the SEC announced a similar inquiry would be instituted into the political connections of Illinois-Iowa Power company and Missouri Power and Light company, also North American subsidiaries. The Illinois-Iowa hearings have been ordered held at Springfield, Ill.]

The utility officials subpenaed are President S. B. Way and Vice President G. W. Van Derzee of the electric company, President R. H. Pinkley of the transport company, and Walter A. Guager and Samuel R. Hatch, auditors for the electric company.

Names of Aldermen.

Aldermen subpenaed are John L. Bohn, president of the city council; Harry J. Devine, former president of the council; Clemens F. Michalski and E. A. Hanson. Legislators called for questioning are Senators Harry G. Bolens, Port Washington; Jesse M. Peters, Hartford; Milton Murray, Milwaukee; Assemblyman Robert Tehan, Milwaukee, and former Senators Joseph Clancy, Racine, and Frank E. Panzer, Dodge county.

Senator Murray said he had talked with Assemblyman Tehan, and neither was able to explain the purpose of the subpena. The aldermen also professed to be mystified. Some suggested there might be two investigations and the aldermen were to be asked about recent activities of the German Nazi bund, which induced the council to refuse a tavern license to a café which the police reported to be a center of bund activity.

Mayor Is Not Called.

It was noted that neither Mayor Carl F. Zeidler nor City Controler William H. Wendt were called for questioning and comment was made that no inquiry could be projected into city finances without calling on Wendt's knowledge of public issues.

The petition for the investigation was signed by B. J. Husting, United States attorney; Edward H. Hickey, special attorney with the criminal division of the department of justice, and Herbert S. French, special assistant attorney general, connected with the Securities Exchange commission.

Buying Mounts as Steel Mills Expand Output

Sales of most steel products have resumed an upward trend after a slight dip in August, and near-capacity production for an extended period is indicated, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

This prediction was also advanced by Joseph E. Jacobson of Pittsburgh, Pa., president of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, who said the steel industry expects to continue its 90 per cent production rate well into 1942—provided the European war is prolonged.

Jacobson said anticipated production for 1940 is 57,000,000 gross tons and for 1941 is 64,700,000 tons. He said there would be no shortage of scrap for defense purposes.

Expects Recovery in Rate.

The trade journal said ingot output this week is scheduled to return to the pre-Labor day level. The holiday caused a 9½ point drop in the operating rate to 82 per cent of capacity.

August pig iron production totaled 4,060,513 tons, the largest amount for any month since July, 1929, Steel said, with production in the first eight months at 29,343,880 tons, against 19,642,202 tons in the 1939 period.

"The net gain for the month of three blast furnaces brought the total number of stacks in blast on August 31, to 190," the trade journal said. "This compares with 138 a year ago and with the most recent peak of 191 last December.

Defense Demands Large.

"War and national defense remain important factors in steel demand. A sharp increase in structural shape awards last week to near the year's best level resulted partly from large orders for plants to be devoted to armament manufacture.

"Heavy steel needs of Great Britain largely are responsible for continued active exports. Rolled steel production for export recently has averaged 20 per cent of total output and of this foreign tonnage more than 40 per cent has consisted of semi-finished products. In recent months a larger percentage of total steel production has been destined for abroad than during 1917 or 1918."

SWEDEN, RUSSIA SIGN TRADE AND CREDIT TREATY

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 8 (AP).—The signing of a new trade and credit agreement between Sweden and soviet Russia in which Sweden extends a credit of 100 million kronor [about 24 million dollars] was announced simultaneously today here and at Moscow. The credit runs five years at 4½ per cent interest. A total of 150 million kronor [about 36 million dollars] in trade and exchange is provided for in the agreement.

Russia may apply her credit over a two year period. Sweden expects to export about 24 million dollars' worth of goods to Russia and import about 18 million dollars' worth of goods from her this year against exports of some 4 million dollars and imports of around 3 million dollars in 1938.

ANALYSIS FAILS TO FIND BENEFIT IN GOLD SCHEME

Program for Silver Also Assailed.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8 (AP).—The American Council of Public Affairs said today that an analysis of administration monetary policies had failed to find "conclusive evidence" that abandonment of the gold standard had produced "substantial benefits." Likewise, the private research organization asserted, the government's silver buying program "has had no justification except as a subsidy to western producing industry."

The study contended, however, that "the case of gold does not seem entirely hopeless," and that it remained "the leading monetary metal as it has for centuries." The belief that it would continue to occupy this position, the report said, was based on "an expectation of an eventual change in recent abnormal world conditions."

Reports Major Uncertainty.

A major uncertainty, the council continued, lay in the threatened "extension of the power of Germany and other totalitarian nations in the future world economy." Germany, it was said, undoubtedly would "desire to carry on extensive trade with the United States and in return for a market favorable to its products may refrain from any action which would destroy or reduce the value of gold as a medium of international exchange."

The analysis, entitled "monetary management under the New Deal," declared that federal reserve authorities had made "notable progress in the development of a technique of monetary management altho restricted by inadequate powers over banking reserves."

STOCK IS 21 BILLIONS

New York, Sept. 8 [Special].—The monetary gold stock of the United States will reach 21 billion dollars tomorrow to establish another new high record and at the same time draw attention to the still unsolved "gold problem."

The 20 billion level was reached on July 2, the 19 billion mark on May 20, and the 18 billion level on Feb. 8, this year. The United States now has more than 70 per cent of the world's monetary gold stock and a 100 per cent interest in the question of what to do about it.

2 SUPERLINERS TO COST ABOUT 22 MILLION EACH

New York, Sept. 8 [Special].—The Maritime commission is scheduled to open bids on Tuesday for the construction of two trans-Pacific superliners planned for operations between California and the orient by the American President Lines. The liners will be the largest ever constructed in this country and will cost about $22,000,000 each.

Opening of the bids has been postponed several times, having first been scheduled in May, but delays have been approved by the Maritime commission for reasons never explained officially. It was reported in May, however, that prospective builders had requested additional time for study of the plans and that some shipyards considered the plans faulty in regard to hull specifications.

The two vessels are to be novel in design, with smokestacks rising at the edge of the deck instead of the middle of the ship, making it possible to convert them quickly and economically into airplane carriers.

Increase in Plant Capacity Exceeds Rise in Production

The quantity of goods produced in the United States in recent years has not increased as rapidly as the capacity to produce, Prof. Frederick C. Mills of Columbia university said in a bulletin released yesterday by the National Bureau of Economic Research.

Mills, president of the American Economic association, also reported that the increase in productive capacity has not resulted in a proportionate reduction in prices paid for goods by consumers.

Conclusions of Study.

Analyzing costs, production and employment in manufacturing industries, prices, wages, salaries and costs of living since 1899, Prof. Mills reached the following conclusions:

1. The benefits of the increase in production which has been achieved by manufacturing industries have not been divided among all the people of the country. Some groups have gained markedly, others have barely held their own, and still others have lost ground when their well being is measured by the amount of work they must do or the quantities of their own products they must give to purchase given quantities of manufactured products.

No Group Steadily Favored.

2. No one group has been favored consistently. The division of the increase in the fruits of labor among various groups of the population has undergone large changes from decade to decade.

3. Consuming groups benefited most from 1900 to 1914 thru reduced prices of goods as compared with prices received by farmers and other producers of raw materials, and with wages and salaries. Producing groups in manufacturing, including wage earners, owners and managers, received the most benefit from gains in productivity between 1914 and 1929, and again from 1929 to 1937.

The increase in the productive capacity of industry, measured in terms of number of workers employed, was estimated by Prof. Mills at 30 per cent between 1899 and 1914, at 50 per cent between 1914 and 1929, and at 24 per cent between 1929 and 1937.

PLANT COST 963 MILLION.

New York, Sept. 8 [Special].—Industry's part in the national defense program will necessitate the spending of an estimated $963,000,000 for the construction of 139 manufacturing plants, exclusive of facilities for the building of national units. This figure was given in a study entitled "The Impact of Rearmament" included in the Shields Survey, now being distributed by Shields & Co. More than half of this amount, the study says, will be needed for equipment and machine tools to outfit the plants.

ROYAL CROWN.

Do you know what company puts out Royal Crown Cola? I would appreciate getting a report on this company and the location of the market for its stock—C. S.

Answer: Royal Crown Cola is bottled by approximately 500 distributors licensed by the Nehi corporation, which makes flavors and syrups for carbonated beverages. The company operates a plant at Columbus, Ga., which processes the fruit syrup concentrates sold to the bottling companies. The business was founded in 1916.

Capitalization of the company consists of 15,603 shares of $5.25 cumulative first preferred stock and 1,030,000 shares of common stock, both of no par value. The common stock is listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Net income of the company, earnings per common share and dividends per common share in recent years compared as follows:

	Net income.	Earned per com.	Dividends per com.
1935	$ 558,570	$0.77	.....
1936	570,507	2.35	.....
1937	958,542	4.23	$3.00
1938	934,307	4.11	2.00
1939	1,075,217	4.81	3.00

Net income in the first half of 1940 was $467,611, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 41 cents a common share, against $480,444, or 43 cents a common share in the first half of 1939. The profit in the latest period was reduced by the expense of issuing a stock dividend and listing the common stock on the New York Stock exchange and by a larger reserve for taxes.

Dividends on the preferred stock are being paid regularly. Payments on the common stock in 1940 amounted to $1.12½ a share thru July 1. A stock dividend of four additional common shares was paid last April on every common share outstanding.

LLOYD'S.

Is it possible to buy an annuity from Lloyd's of London?—C. B. J.

Answer: No. Lloyd's of London writes marine, fire, and casualty insurance, but not ordinary life insurance or annuities.

PENSION.

If my company pays me a pension after I am 65 years old, will I be ineligible to receive the old age benefits under the social security program? How can I compute what my benefits will be?—D. H.

Answer: Receipt of a pension does not prevent a worker, who has met the requirements, from obtaining the benefits due him under the law. Forms for calculating benefits that may accrue to a worker and his family under the social security program may be obtained from this department by mailing a request and a stamped, addressed envelope.
